Earthquake—Preparation Of What Would You Think?

Canadian Diamonds, Fish Ears

—Lonely Tragedy

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1924, Star Co.

ANOTHER EARTHQUAKE in Japan. Nature seems trying to break the spirit of that brave people. But she won't succeed. Called a small quake in Japan, it would worry us here, cutting off the water from Nagoya, a city of 450,000.

SWITZERLAND, one of the smallest nations, forbids any citizen of huge Russia to enter Swiss territory. Russia has recently undertaken to bully Switzerland, because the Soviet representative was murdered there. It is not easy to bully a nation like the Swiss, with every able-bodied man a trained soldier, and armed. Switzerland, safe and respected throughout the great war, proves the wisdom of preparation.

WHAT BOOKS would you take to a desert island?

What would you do, if you knew you had only one more day to live?

What would you do, if you had twenty million dollars? Helen Stein, intelligent young secretary of Nathan Straus, replied to that last question, "I'd go crazy."

THOSE ARE old questions.

Here is a new one, based on the experience of three Italian mountain climbers, who, held by a rope, hung for five hours over a mountain precipice, waiting to be saved.

WHAT WOULD you THINK about hanging for five hours below the edge of a precipice? Would you review your sins and mistakes, vowing better conduct, if spared, or would you just HANG OVER THE PRECIPICE?

We are all hanging over the edge of one steep precipice, called death. A great majority of us "just hang" and think about it very little.

DO YOU keep track of the British Association for the Advancement of Science at Toronto?

Dr. Kunz, American scientist, gives Canadians good news. Diamonds, one as big as 20 karats, have been found in a glacial drift. Those diamonds were dragged here from Canada by the power of moving ice, in the glacial period, at least half a million years ago. There are many diamonds somewhere in Canada. If the drift could be traced back, diamond mines might be found more valuable than any in the world.

Dr. Kunz suggests that the moving ice just scraped off the top of the diamond mine. And since all the diamond mines in the world are only four square miles in extent, if Canadians can find a few such more "miles" they will be even richer than they are. A Canadian "Rand" is worth seeking.

YOU CAN TELL the age of fishes "by the size of their ears." The fish has an interior ear; although you can't see it, it is there. In that ear grows a little "otolith" like a small stone. Rolling around the ear cavity this stone, by its feeling, tells the fish whether he is swimming right side up or on his back.

Strange idea, you say, but the same is true of man. We have inside the ear structure a minute quantity of liquid, which, as it moves back and forth like the "spirit" in a mechanic's level, enables us to keep our balance with our eyes shut. Misconstrue that liquid, destroys that fluid and its victims fall over when they shut their eyes, and they must look at their feet as they walk.

We are all "fearfully and wonderfully made"—fish, men, mice and microbe.

WHAT STORY of loneliness, despair and, perhaps, jealousy lies back of a dreadful murder and attempted suicide reported from Lindsey, Ontario? A mother, twenty-eight years old, in her husband's absence, erected an improvised gallows, on which she hanged her two children, aged seven and eight. She then cut her throat, and was found bleeding to death by her own husband when he returned to their lonely, isolated farm, from "a visit to the city."

After she had hanged the children, the mother dressed them in their best clothes and laid them out. Then she cut her throat. She may get well. The woman said nothing but "They are dead," when her husband

PENN. MAN HEAD OF G.A.R.

Dr. Arensburg Chosen Commander-in-Chief at Today's Election

Louis F. Arensberg of Arensberg, Pa., a retired physician, was elected commander-in-chief of the G. A. R. today.

Leading on the first ballot, he received 363 votes on the second, or twenty-four more than was needed to elect. On motion of E. C. Hawk of California, the runner-up, the election was made unanimous.

Hawk got 312 votes on the second ballot. John B. Inman of Springfield, Ill., did not develop the strength his backers anticipated and withdrew after the first ballot.

Dr. Arensberg is a former commander of the Department of Pennsylvania and president of the Board of Trustees of the Soldiers and Sailors' Home at Erie, Pa. Arensberg is not far from Altoona. The town was named for his family.

OTHER OFFICERS ELECTED.

Wilfred A. Wetherbee of Newton was elected senior vice-commander; John W. Reece of Nebraska, junior vice-commander; the Rev. Charles W. Hodgett of Ohio, chaplain; Geo. A. Hosley of Boston, chief of staff; D. R. Stowitz of New York, adjutant general.

Immediately after election the officers were installed. Commander-in-Chief Arensberg promised to try to induce the next Congress to pass a pension bill acceptable to all Grand Army men.

Then the delegates were taken by automobile to the estate of Miss A. L. Forbes in Milton and to historical spots in Concord and Lexington.

MRS. WILLARD CHOSEN.

While the Grand Army men were electing in Symphony Hall, the members of the Women's Relief Corps, meeting in Tremont Temple, were selecting Mrs. Grace R. Willard as the next national president.

Other offices were filled as follows: Senior vice president, Mrs. Regina Demorest; junior vice president, Mrs. Hattie G. Wheaton; chaplain, Mrs. Anna Earle; treasurer, Mrs. Emma W. Campbell; members of the executive committee, Mrs. A. F. Freese, Mrs. Lina Dutton, Mrs. Augusta Wildhage, Mrs. Gertrude M. Harrison and Mrs. Dora E. Newell.

Before the business session, four G. A. R. men waited upon Governor Cox and provided an impromptu concert.

They were noticed by Herman A. MacDonald, the Governor's secretary, as they were inspecting the battle flags at the State House.

On his invitation they met the Governor and began playing on the instruments they carried, the popular songs of sixty years ago.

Drops Dead While Family Waits for Vacation Trip

Worcester, Aug. 14.—Patrolman Octave E. Gardner, aged forty-seven, a veteran of G Company, Ninth Massachusetts Infantry in the Spanish-American War, and a policeman for thirteen years, dropped dead in the police gymnasium today.

At his home the wife and three of his four children, with trunks packed, were awaiting his coming to be taken in the family automobile to Hough's Neck for a vacation.

M'COY INSISTS HE LOVED HIS VICTIM

Los Angeles, Aug. 14.—"I loved her as I never loved a woman before. I didn't kill her."

That was as far as the police had reached after hours of grilling today in an effort to make Norman Selby, known through a long ring career and in motion pictures as "Kid McCoy" confess he had murdered Mrs. Theresa Mors in the fashionable Nottingham apartments here.

Police do not believe the story. They said the woman was shot in the left side of the head, her body was bruised and beaten, stuck in many places with a pin or knife, and that she could not have inflicted the wounds that caused her death.

McCoy, veteran of the prize ring, whose fists fetched him fighting renown more than a quarter of a century ago, sat in jail cell here today, facing the most desperate battle of his career—a fight to free himself of the charge of murder.

CALLED ON SISTER.

When McCoy was arrested he was stubbornly silent for a time, but finally talked freely. Mrs. Mors killed herself, he said; the shock and grief "put out his lights" and filled him with an insane rage to kill her husband, "who drove her to it, to kill all those who stood in his way and finally to kill himself."

But fate hid Mors from him, and his plan to kill himself was lost in a swirl of events.

"I was going to kill myself," he said, explaining the note found in the apartment, "but—I forgot."

Police believe portions of McCoy's story, but declare his suicide device has already received its knockout blow from the Kid's own sister, Mrs. Jennie Thomas, whom they quote as saying McCoy came to her home soon after the shooting of Mrs. Mors and burst out with:

"I just had to kill that woman."

TELLS NEW STORY OF MURDER

Declares Doctor and Noble, Slain Realtor, Were on Good Terms

William O. Thiery today broke his silence and discussed with thoroughness and candor the relations between his son, Dr. Raymond D. Thiery, and his son-in-law, David M. Noble, of whose murder Dr. Thiery stands accused.

Admitting that his son used drugs, he said it was "only a little barbaloin," or something like that." He probably meant barbital, another name for veronal.

He insisted that Dr. Thiery was quite normal and not laboring under any emotional strain the night Noble was slain.

Of Noble, he said he loved him and did not believe stories of irregularities in his private life.

"I was talking with my boy in the living room of our home at No. 34 Central street, Somerville, the very night of the shooting," he said.

CALLS ENMITY IN QUESTION

"It may seem a strange coincidence, but we were talking about David and Raymond remarked on his excellent character and fine traits.

"He told me David had changed some papers in order to make him administrator or executor or whatever the word is. That had been done after my daughter died. Does it indicate enmity?

"I was awakened by the very moment of the shooting. Mr. Thiery spoke of his experiences and emotions without a quaver.

"I was awakened by the sound of the shot," he said. "I thought it was the backfire of an automobile.

"That thought had not taken shape before I heard a voice calling 'Father, father, father.'

"I jumped from the bed and ran downstairs. I saw the body of a

BULLETS HALT WILD DRIVER

Several shots were fired by Patrolmen Adair and Maguire today, in a wild chase after John J. Hoar, thirty-one years old, of Worcester, charged with operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor.

The police claim the man, who gives an address on Dartmouth street, Worcester, was zig-zagging along Commonwealth avenue in his machine.

They shouted at Hoar to halt, but he only stepped on the gas. The officers commandeered another car and pursued, the chase leading through Brighton to the Watertown Arsenal, where a fusilade of shots brought the fleeing man to a stop.

man. In the excitement it didn't occur to me that I heard the voice calling again "Father, where are you?"

"I went into the cellar and found my son. All that happened in about sixty seconds.

The elder Thiery was excited and indignant as his story approached its climax, declared that the police theory was ridiculous, as his son could not have done all the things they charge him with in the sixty seconds that elapsed between the shooting and the discovery of the doctor in the cellar.

Asked concerning the rumor that Dr. Thiery used drugs, he said that he used a little "bayberry" some times when he had been studying too hard and was unable to sleep.

CONDITION ABNORMAL

"The night it all happened he was studying, or preparing to, he continued, and they denied that his son's condition was abnormal that night.

After he found his son, the elder Thiery said he tried to lift him off the floor.

"I had difficulty," he proceeded, "He is a big fellow. He put on nothing but his pajama pants. It was then I saw that the murder was committed in the house. I told him I had to get the police and he begged me not to leave me. He felt back and groaned. He tried to tell me something but could not. I telephoned to the police.

When the police arrived he accompanied them to the cellar, Thiery said. While they were there they heard a noise, like some scratching on the wall, and a report as if somebody had gone out. It said someone could have fallen with a backhand and made all so without being seen.

BAT IN HOUSE.

Questioning concerning the bat with which the police charge Dr. Thiery killed Noble, Mr. Thiery said that when Raymond said a bat that he had thrown it away some time before he thought he was telling the truth.

"His mother had objected to the bat weapons and he threw some of them away," he went on. "He thought the gun was included in the list. When they found it he admitted owning it. Then they said he had been lying."

Mr. Thiery was bitter over the questioning of his son while he was weakened after an operation. He said it put the boy in a bad light.

"About Raymond's coming down stairs," he said, "There was a bat in the house. Policemen saw it. Probably it awakened him and he was chasing it when we heard the shot."

Mr. Thiery said that there was no friction between any of his family and Noble, who married his daughter. He insisted that Mrs. Thiery favored the match and never had cause to regret it.

Thiery Confession Never Thought Of

By HERT FORD

The most sensational angle to the police by Dr. Raymond D. Thiery, alleged slayer of his brother-in-law, David M. Noble, gave rise to rumors of a "confession" "new version of the shooting," and the like.

It was nothing of the kind, according to information from a reliable source. It was rather an inquiry on the part of the prisoner.

It was then that Dr. Thiery sent for the officers with the request that he would like to talk to them caused no end of speculation.

He told the policeman in charge at the bedside in Massachusetts General Hospital and the policeman reported to Chief Kendall of the Somerville police. Chief Kendall notified State Detectives John Stokes and Joseph Pecrari and Lieutenants Feeney and Kennedy who are also working their entire time to solution of the crime.

The state detectives notified Assistant District Attorney Warren L. Bishop. He advised the boys with the request that Dr. Thiery be allowed to talk to the police. Stenographer Miss Alice Manning, official stenographer for District Attorney Leading off Middlesex County, was sent for. Miss Manning jotted down every syllable uttered by Dr. Thiery.

In the several interviews that have taken place at the hospital between the accused inmate and the officers Dr. Thiery is reported to have repeated his statement in detail as he said. It was stated that he stuck to his original story.

He showed marked improvement in physical condition.

Despite reports to the contrary, Dr. Thiery has never been considered seriously ill since his transfer from the Somerville to Massachusetts General Hospital. He spent the afternoon on Sunday remarkably well. Reports that he was in a dying condition have amused members of the hospital staff and officials regarding the case.

It is expected that the accused will be strong enough to be removed to East Cambridge jail within two or three weeks.

25 Witnesses in Noble Murder Case

Assistant District-Attorney Warren L. Bishop of Middlesex county, in charge of the prosecuting of Dr. Raymond D. Thiery, charged with the murder of his brother-in-law, David M. Noble, has already rounded up twenty-five witnesses for the prosecution.

Those witnesses are being examined as rapidly as possible and their testimony taken by stenographers so that the evidence can be prepared in proof over prior to its presentation to the Grand Jury.

There will be no special session of the Grand Jury called to consider the murder charge against the young Somerville physician. The regular Grand Jury meets the first Tuesday in September and the fact that no special Grand Jury is to be called indicates that the State is well satisfied with its case.

The assistant district attorney has arranged to have Dr. Thiery taken before the lower court if he is discharged from the hospital before the Grand Jury meets. The lower court will likely remand him to the East Cambridge jail without bail to await the action of the Grand Jury.

HINT FORGERY IN WILL OF DAVID NOBLE

An unexpected development has occurred in the mystery slaying of David M. Noble, Somerville real estate man. No announcement by the authorities that handwriting experts will examine the murder victim's will before it is filed for probate.

The will, executed only a week ago, but was not dated, names as executor Dr. Raymond Thiery, brother-in-law, who is under arrest in the cell of the first degree murder.

The offices of Middlesex county have not yet examined the will, but there is a strong possibility that the document purporting to be the will may not be genuine.

TO EXAMINE WILL.

Noble had named his wife as executor and beneficiary under the will, but following her death, in April, he changed to make out another will until a few days before he met death in the hallway of the Thiery home, where he lived.

Handwriting Expert Tanner has been engaged by the Middlesex District Attorney's office to examine the will which will likely be presented in court within the next few days. Other experts will assist Tanner.

A problem that the court will have to settle is that of naming an executor for the estate, which amounts to more than $17,000. With Dr. Thiery charged with the murder of Noble, and also named as executor of his alleged victim's estate, it is probable the court will appoint someone outside of the family to look after the estate, which is left in trust for the slain man's daughter.

NO EXPLANATION YET.

The District-Attorney's office was interested when word came from the Massachusetts General Hospital that Dr. Thiery wished to make a statement. Considerable delay occurred before the officials and stenographer reached the hospital, and in the meantime the accused physician had changed his mind and refused to disclose the slaying of Noble.

For the present, at least, the body of Noble will not be released for the purpose of performing an autopsy. While this possibility was discussed, the district attorney's office decided here was not sufficient evidence to warrant his taking this step.

According to officials at the Massachusetts General Hospital, the accused doctor was of an extremely nervous temperament and at times before the fumes of ether to relieve him of his nervous disorder. The hospital authorities refuse to disclose the crime with the physician who is even denied newspapers containing any notice of the crime of which he is accused.

Dr. Thiery has been visited at the hospital by both his father and mother, but the greetings the mystery man gave his parents seemed to lack affection.

When Mrs. Thiery came into her son's room at the hospital and met him for the first time since the murder and his arrest three days later, she greeted him casually with "Hello, Raymond."

"Hello, mother," returned Dr. Thiery. "Leaning over the bed, she kissed him on the lips. There was no evidence of deep emotion on the part of either.

"I hope you are getting better," said the mother.

"I'm feeling much better today," was the reply.

"It's cooler today, isn't it?" remarked Mrs. Thiery, and her son agreed that it was.

During the entire interview of about 20 minutes there was no mention of Mr. Noble, murdered husband of Mrs. Thiery's daughter and Dr. Thiery's sister, or of the crime in any way, or of the fact that Dr. Thiery is a prisoner held to answer to the law for the crime.

Plans for Thiery Defence Not Yet Made

Plans have not yet been made for the defence of Dr. Raymond Thiery, arrested for the murder of his brother-in-law, David M. Noble, Somerville real estate man. The doctor, himself, refused to discuss the matter at the Massachusetts General Hospital, where he is now a patient. His father, William Thiery, was almost equally reticent when approached on the subject. All that the elder Thiery would say was that his attorney would be his son's.

DEATH OF SLAIN MAN'S WIFE PROBED

As a result of the alleged murder of her husband by her brother, the death of the victim's wife, Mrs. Louise Thiery Noble last April, has been dragged into the zone of suspicion.

There have been rumors and counter rumors that Mrs. Noble's body would be exhumed from the family lot in Cambridge Cemetery where it now lies beside that of her husband who was buried on Tuesday.

As a matter of fact there has never been any suspicion attached to Mrs. Noble's death. Her husband, who because of disagreements with her family, would have been the most likely to have fostered such a theory thought the opposite.

David Noble felt and told intimates that he was sure Louise's brother had done everything in his power for his sister. It is true Dr. Thiery was criticised roundly by relatives and friends for treating his sister when only out of Harvard Medical School a few months, and for not calling in another physician from the outset of Louise's illness.

What was not known to these critics and what was known by David M. Noble and a very few of his confidantes, was that Dr. Thiery wanted to call in a more experienced physician but that his sister would not permit it. She insisted on treatment by Raymond and nobody else.

When her condition became critical Dr. Thiery summoned Dr. Louis Guy Mead, specialist, of No. 122 Marlboro street, Boston, but she was beyond human aid.

It appears to be a question of whether her life could have been saved anyway, but some close to the family feel that Dr. Thiery, the accused slayer of Noble, committed a professional, ethical and moral blunder when he took charge of her case under such circumstances.

DISPUTE OVER OPERATION BREAKS UP CHIROPRACTOR'S HOME

WIFE GOES UNDER KNIFE

Arguments and Lockout of Husband Lead to Suit for Separate Maintenance

The romance which began when pretty Mrs. Anna M. Yerx, a divorcee, went to work in the office of Leon A. Dana, fashionable chiropractor, has come to an inglorious end.

Discussion of the relative merits of surgery and chiropractice grew so acrimonious in the Dana household, friends say, that the wife, without broaching the subject to her husband, has filed suit for separate maintenance.

The action, brought through Attorney Robert White, was preceded by a "scene" at the Brookline home. Mrs. Dana locked her husband out, entering. When she returned from his club he had to summon help to force an entrance.

FIT SURROUNDINGS.

Thirteen years ago Mrs. Yerx secured a divorce from William Yerx. Soon it became necessary to secure employment to support herself and daughter.

She applied at Dana's offices at No. 99 Beacon street, Brookline. As the Dana clientele is quite exclusive, the chiropractor at once saw the young divorcee would fit in well with the rich fittings of his suite.

She it wasn't long until he was convinced an even better setting for the charms of his assistant could be found in his own home. So impressively did he press his suit that the couple were married after a brief courtship.

HAS OPERATION.

Life in the Dana home was serene until Mrs. Dana decided she would have to undergo an operation.

Being a firm believer in chiropractice, her husband said "bunk" to the operation talk, according to friends.

Mrs. Dana went to the hospital anyway and underwent the operation.

Upon her return home an endless series of arguments started. Mrs. Dana's daughter by her first marriage widened the breach by siding with her stepfather.

Finally, personal conduct of the members of the family went under fire. Dana insists his wife hired a detective and had him followed.

The lockout and separate maintenance suit bring the story down to date.

"I can't understand it. I've been devoted to her ever since I married her," says Dana.

The couple are still occupying the same apartment in Brookline but are living in a state of "armed" neutrality. Even discussions of the relative merits of surgery and chiropractic have been terminated.

SECOND ROMANCE OF BEAUTY SHATTERED

MRS. ANNA M. DANA

Wife of Leon A. Dana, chiropractor, who is suing for separation, after divorcing her first husband. Mrs. Dana became a clerk for her present husband and it was in his office that the romance started which culminated in their wedding. A dispute, it is alleged, over the relative merits of surgery and chiropractice led to the marital rift.

'SPEED-CRAZED' MOTORMEN SCORED

Judge Day Blames Them for Nine-Tenths of Crashes With Autos

"Speed-crazed motormen" were condemned by Judge Day in South Boston Court today, when by removal three were responsible for accidents of the collisions between automobiles and trolleys.

The characterization was made when he discharged Charles Sullivan of No. 298 E street, South Boston, charged with operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor.

Sullivan's machine, on August 10, was in collision with a car of the Point trolley on Broadway, below E street. Patrolman Manley and Blary, who appeared shortly after, placed Sullivan under arrest as drunk.

In court today the defendant, in reply to a question by his attorney, William McDonald, said he had been drinking nothing but near-beer.

"I am satisfied the man is not guilty," said Judge Day, "It is time motormen racing through the streets of South Boston should be curbed. They try to beat automobiles to crossings, and I have seen them racing by intersecting streets and through semaphore. They are speed crazed. Nine times out of ten when there is a collision between a trolley and automobile, it is the motorman's fault."

The motorman involved in this particular accident was Edward T. Carney.

"L" MANAGER DRAWS $20,000 PER YEAR

Dana Admits Salary Raise While Opposing Increase to Road's Men

Continued from General managers of [illegible] (Crosstown) in 1915 and received $15,000 a year salary. [illegible] asked an increase of $2,000. In 1919 he drew $2,000. Mann further stated that only four of the fifty-three roads have a one-man differential equal to the accord with the men on the board recommended that the distinguishing feature in this differential is that it is run on the principle of service and cost.

Asked by Attorney Vacey if it wasn't a fact that the boat was in "terrible" condition when taken over by the trustees, Dana admitted that some of it was, such as tracks and rolling stock.

Dana declared that the Legislature made the removal and upkeep of two properly mandatory, and for this purpose approximately $13,000, the one boat utilized for depreciation.

It developed that about $2,000,000 was to appropriated yearly for the road.

HUB GARMENT STRIKE MAY END MONDAY

The strike of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America here will end and most of the workers will be back on their jobs Monday, according to J. Blume, an officer of the organization.

A large number of settlements have been made. At an all-day meeting today, between representatives of strikers and manufacturers, it is expected complete settlements will be made.

BLAMES POLICE.

Blume declared police were responsible for the small riots in the South End in connection with recent arrests there. He said that the police were preventing peaceful picketing of a certain South End shop.

Police say there is no labor trouble in this shop and they are within their rights in stopping the picketing.

Today, in the vicinity of the rioting where twenty-six men and two women were arrested and one man stabbed, police were seen on every corner, and all approaches to the picketed shop were guarded.

COME IN MACHINES.

No attempt at violence was made by the strikers. Workers at the Kondrasin factory on Castle street and Shawmut avenue came to work this morning in automobiles and taxicabs.

Strike Manager Blume announced that another mass meeting of strikers would be held tomorrow morning at ten o'clock. At that time, the strikers will be told how many manufacturers have made settlements.

The vicinity of the Kondrasin factory will be well policed as the workers are leaving work this afternoon, because it is rumored that the strikers will make another attempt to persuade the workers to join them.

FORMER STATE SOLONS FIGHT CHILD LABOR

Ex-Legislators Organize to Push New Federal Amendment

Former members of the Legislatures of 1908, 1909 and 1910 are being organized by ex-Representative William H. O'Brien into a committee to secure ratification by Massachusetts of the Child Labor amendment to the Federal Constitution.

It was during those three years said O'Brien today, that state great humane laws as Mother's Aid, industrial accident compensation and shorter hours were passed.

"While I am not keen on the centralization of power in Washington," he declared, "this is a special case, because the Supreme Court has decided that it can't be done any other way.

"Only through such an amendment can Massachusetts hope to end the unfair competition and the rushing of cradles to Southern mills."

Flowing Hat Scarves All the Go in Newport Colony Now

By BETTY ALDEN.

AND now milady wears a long, gaily-colored scarf flowing from the crown of her smart chapeau.

This latest foible has become a tremendous favorite with members of the fair sex who wear white a great deal but who like just that requisite dash or color to complete their costume.

At Newport the flowing hat-scarf is seen as much as anywhere. Since the opening of the tennis tournament, the Casino has been filled with smartly gowned matrons and maids, many of them Summer colonists at the queen resort and others visiting there.

Among the latter was dashing Miss Bertha Braggiotti of Boston, who has been the guest of Miss Stevens at Little Rhody's famous Summer playground.

The other day Miss Braggiotti appeared at the Casino wearing a white gown, with a flame-color scarf swinging from the crown of her small white hat. With her tall, slender figure this talented girl carries off very well the rather striking sartorial creations which she affects.

The same day Mrs. Sylvanus Stokes—who's easily one of the most dashing matrons at Newport—was at the Casino wearing a frock of black and white print, her large black hat trimmed with a crimson crown and scarf.

Mr. and Mrs. William Goadby Loew started the ball rolling by giving a luncheon for the competitants on Tuesday, followed that evening by a dance given in the Casino by the tennis committee. Dances are being given throughout the week at which the wielders of the racquet are to be the guests of honor.

Though Mrs. Chas. Thayer—of the very small Boston colony at Newport—is not among the contestants, I note that she is one of the keenest spectators. It is at golf that the distinguished Boston dowager shines, and it was just a short time ago that she and her partner won the mixed foursome tombstone tournament held at the Newport Country Club for which Mrs. William Goadby Loew offered the prizes.

30,000 EAGLES IN PROVIDENCE PARADE

Monster Chowder Party at Crescent Park Also Big Feature

Providence, R. I., Aug. 14—Approximately 30,000 members of the Fraternal Order of Eagles marched through Providence streets today in the nationwide Eagles parade, the feature event of the 28th annual convention of the organization now in session in this city.

It was one of the most colorful parades in Providence in years, and the Eagles left an impression here that will remain for years to come. Thousands lined the streets and cheered the marchers as they passed.

Governor William Flynn, Mayor Gainer and Mayor James M. Curley of Boston were the chief dignitaries in the reviewing stand. All three are Eagles and the marchers gave them a cheer each time as they swung by.

Immediately following the parade the Eagles attended a monster chowder feast at Crescent Park, where the 2000 tons of clams in readiness for prior to being $12,500.

REGISTRATION OF VOTERS TO BEGIN TONIGHT

Volunteers Organize to Take Citizens to Booths for Their Enrolment

Local registration of voters for the primaries will begin tonight in every ward of Boston. Three nights will be devoted to one section of each ward, and the next three to the other half.

There is less to be more actively than ever this year in the registration of voters. For the first time a volunteer committee of citizens has been formed, cooperating with the Democratic city and State Committees, to encourage registration. The city has been split into sections, each having a captain with fifty automobiles at his disposal for the use of all candidates to carry the citizens to the registration booths and back to their homes.

Rallies will be held throughout the city during the week, at which candidates and prominent citizens will speak. Registration rallies will be held in East Boston under the auspices of the Massachusetts Democratic Society.

BOY AND GIRL SWEETHEARTS ELOPE

Tyngsboro Couple Were Last Seen in Auto Headed for Boston

Tyngsboro, Aug. 14.—Sweethearts never since he was in short trousers and her hair in pigtails, Clifford Malo and Cleo Brodeur are missing from their homes.

Although they are under age, their parents believe they have eloped and plan to be married.

Chief of Police Pelletier has been asked to broadcast descriptions of the pair and warn the authorities of other New England cities to be on the watch for them.

Malo is nineteen years old. Miss Brodeur is seventeen. She returned to her home recently, after spending two years at a convent school. It is said by her people that the girl objected to the strictness of home life, and was greatly disappointed when she was not allowed more freedom.

When her father refused her permission to attend dances and late parties she rebelled, and had threatened to leave the house.

"I am grown up—I do insist I be treated like a little girl?" she demanded a day or two before she went away.

Christopher and Raymond Malo, brothers of the missing boy, were the last to see him. They were in an automobile on Thorndike street, Lowell. Thomas Boyle, nineteen years old of No. 98 Mount Washington street, Lowell, was with them. Apparently they were headed toward Boston. None of the three has returned.

CUTTERS IN BROCKTON SHOE PLANT STRIKE

Canter and immersole cutters struck in the factory of the W. & F. W. Filson Company of Brockton today in protest against wages and conditions there. They are all members of the Boot & Shoe Workers Union. Last April the employes struck against a wage reduction. The matter was settled when the State Board of Arbitration granted a 5 per cent. reduction in wages.

STATE EXPERT'S EXAMINATION ATTACKED

Counsel for Loeb and Leopold Attempt to Show It Was Hasty and Superficial

Chicago, Aug. 14.—The conflict of medical theories and psychological impressions that has turned the Loeb-Leopold trial into a battle of alienists was resumed with intensity today before Judge John R. Caverly with the defence lawyers seeking to break down by cross-examination the conclusions of Dr. Hugh T. Patrick for the State, that the slayers of Bobby Franks are sane, normal and responsible.

The opinion of the State alienists that Loeb and Leopold are not mentally diseased is based largely upon an examination they conducted with in a few hours after both boys had confessed.

The defense endeavored to prove today that this examination was hasty, superficial and could in no way compare in the careful X-Ray and microscopic work by which the defense doctors arrived at their conclusions that the young slayers had pronounced mental and emotional disorders.

Proceeding on this line, Benjamin Bachrach, for the defense, put Dr. Patrick through a sharp questioning concerning the examination.

Dr. Patrick said he had a long talk with Leopold, that they discussed birds and psychological subjects, such as the relation of instinct to reasoning, and on the whole, he said, his observations of the young slayer were conducted under "very favorable circumstances."

FAVORABLE CIRCUMSTANCES.

"Favorable to what?" asked Bachrach sharply, after bringing out that the state's attorney, detectives and many other people had been in and out of the room while Patrick and Leopold talked.

"Favorably for observation," returned the alienist. "The circumstances were very well adapted to the ascertaining of certain mental qualities."

"Such as what?"

"Well, the circumstances were favorable to bringing out how well he could concentrate his ability to hold on intelligent conversation coming in and out; it was an excellent opportunity to see how logically his mind worked; to what extent he could use language and words, and to gauge his powers of memory."

Leopold himself volunteered most of the information obtained during the examination, Dr. Patrick said. The young slayer started a careful conversation with the alienist about his professional activities, and Dr. Patrick said they had a "very interesting talk."

State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe was present part of the time.

"Did you ever in your life make an examination of a person as to his mental state under circumstances of that sort?" asked Bachrach.

"I think not," admitted the alienist, laughing.

"As a matter of fact, didn't Mr. Crowe direct what the examination should consist of?"

"No, he merely said to observe the young men, and asked them to repeat the whole story to me."

$20,000 BARN DESTROYED BY FIRE IN HAY LOFT

'KID' M'COY IS GRILLED IN SHOOTING

Declares Woman He Is Accused of Killing, Committed Suicide

City Hall, admitted that he had called on his sister soon after Mrs. Mora' death, but "couldn't remember what I told her or how long I stayed."

IN JEALOUS RAGE.

He clung to his simple version of the shooting, telling detectives that Mrs. Mora was driven to despair by her troubles with her former husband, that she suddenly cried out that she "wouldn't stand it any longer," and attempted to stab herself to death with a butcher knife. When this failed, he said, she took a pistol from a dresser drawer and fired a bullet through her head before he could stop her.

Police declare, however, that what Mrs. Mora really planned was a reconciliation with her former husband, and that McCoy's jealous rage over this impending reconciliation led him to kill her and then to go out seeking to kill Mora.

In his search for Mora he went to the Mora antique shop, where, according to his own story, he planned to shoot Mr. Mora and then kill Mr. and Mrs. Sam Schupe, who operated a shop next door and who recently had made efforts to bring about a reconciliation between Mr. and Mrs. Mora.

What he actually did was to wound William Rose, a patron who happened to enter the Mora establishment, and Mr. and Mrs. Schupe, whom he pursued into their shop when they refused to be lured into Mora place. None of the three was wounded seriously.

HAD BEEN DRINKING.

In telling of the shooting affray McCoy expressed over and over again that he had been drinking and that he was crazed with the shock and grief and out of his mind.

Police for a time believed that McCoy had found Mora and killed him, but after a search of several hours his attorney reported to Central police station and announced his client was ready to be questioned. It was then revealed that Mora was on his way to his shop about the time McCoy entered it, and that for the first time in his life Mora broke down would have reached his place of business in the midst of the former's shooting spree.

By the time the machine could be repaired, however, Mora's wife's shooting excited neighbors had warned Mora that McCoy was amuck. He accordingly remained away until McCoy was locked in a cell at the City Jail, charged with bonds, under his promise to her arms suspicion of murder, assault with a dead then went running.

Kid McCoy Nine Times Winner in Matrimonial Ring

FAMOUS BOXER NOW HELD AS SLAYER

Norman Selby, popularly known as "Kid" McCoy, and Mrs. Jacqueline McDowell of Baltimore, who was scheduled to be his tenth bride, snapped under the spreading palms of Los Angeles reading with deep concentration a license, wrested from a hard-hearted city clerk. This was to be the "Kid's" tenth pilgrimage into matrimony, but it didn't come off. His longest marriage to "take" was with Mrs. Edward Ellis. That lasted for five years.

deadly weapon, with intent to kill, shoot, etc.

While McCoy denied the killing police moved swiftly throughout the city in an all-night search for the slayer. They said before the day was over his sister would appear before Detective Agency Keys and repeat the confession police asserted she said McCoy made to her.

"He came to my house at 2 a. m. and told me he killed Mrs. Mora," is what the authorities quote McCoy's sister as telling them.

McCoy is married and has already confessed to his sister, Assistant Captain of Detectives Herman Cline said today. "He started out to look for Mora. He was angry because he had heard Mr. Mora was going to leave him. He stacked his bloody clothes in a bundle, stuffed his pistol in her arms and then went running.

"Fast women and slow horses" are blamed by "Kid" McCoy for all his misfortunes.

His adventures in the matrimonial field read like pages torn from the latest novel. They eclipse his ring career, which in itself was something to be proud to boast of.

On nine occasions the "Kid" was taken the court under "Dan via police" constraints.

HIS NINE WEDDINGS.

Count one, in 1894, found the "Kid" wedded to Lottie Pfeffer. But only for a year did the pugilist remain in that state. A year later he wended his way to the divorce courts and was again a free man.

Single "Kid" remained not satisfied, however, and again in 1896 he was leading a young woman to the altar. On this occasion Cherie little stunt was the bride. This marriage lasted a few months. Before the year 1897 had passed into history McCoy was again single via the divorce courts.

Turn nine count three and the most interesting part of the fighter's career. He married Julia Woodruff the same year he was divorced from Charlotte Smith. Twice during the bout he had young women to the altar.

WED ONE WOMAN 3 TIMES.

Four times years the "Kid" was connected. Then he divorced Julia, only to remarry her again a year later. Again the separated. Twice Julia and again in 1902 he entered into his final marriage vows with the same woman.

The act attempt lasted only a few months, however, and during the years that followed the "Kid" again found himself searching for a wife.

Count six found McCoy leading to the altar Ardell Dow, the middle of hundreds of friends would to hear him say "I do." This was in 1904. But no sooner the marriage lasted only a few months and before the end of 1904 the "Kid" was again in the divorce courts.

Hattie Dell Price was the bride in the seventh encounter, which occurred in 1905. She held the position longer than any of his previous wives. It was not until 1910 that the divorce courts had to deal with the marital tangles of "Kid" McCoy once again.

LASTED FEW WEEKS.

And then back to his old trans. Count eight found the "Kid" once more wedded, Valentine Hein in 1911. This was another of the marriages that lasted but a few weeks. Before the end of February 1911 the bride-maid was and a divorce decree was granted.

The next wedding bells failed to peal forth in the McCoy domain. Carmen Mondez was the principal in count nine. This marriage lasted but a short time and then McCoy answering to deserting and non-support proceedings before the judge granted his wife in the ninth marital ventures, a decree.

Count ten occurred some 1923 when the "Kid" has been engaged to marry. The last time he decided that he would try marriage was in July, and then just he informed the world that he was going to wed a girl named "Gene," who was an actress. The wedding fever materialized.

Slain Woman Married Moers Nine Years Ago

New York, Aug. 14.—Mrs. Carrie C. Moers, mother-in-law of Mrs. Albert Moers, of whose murder in Los Angeles "Kid" McCoy is accused, lives in New York City with a daughter. Mrs. Moers said the correct spelling of the family name was with an "E," but that after going to California her son had changed the spelling.

The slain woman, according to the mother, came here 17 years ago from Czecho-Slovakia. She worked as stenographer for Mora. Nine years ago, Mrs. Moers said, the couple were married.

CHILD BURNED WHEN HOT WATER IS UPSET

While playing in the kitchen of her home at No. 19 Greenhow street, Roxbury, Ettie Katez, five years old, upset a bowl of hot water which was on a table and severely burned herself. She was taken to the City Hospital by her mother, where it was found the child's back and lower part of the body were burned.

800 MANAGERS OF A&P STORES HOLD OUTING

Shore Dinner and Sports Program Is Enjoyed at Pemberton

Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company, members of the Atlantic & Pacific Manager's Benefit Association, held their annual outing at Pemberton and enjoyed a shore dinner at Pemberton Inn.

The outing was one of the most successful in the history of the organization. Among those present were the Boston managers from the North and South branches, and the managers at Somerville.

GREAT GROWTH

W. J. Jackson, general superintendent, welcomed the guests and spoke briefly of the growth of the organization which had only eight managers when he came to the concern a few years ago. He urged unity and co-operation and courteous service, which he said the A. & P. regards as their highest aim in dealing with the public.

Eighteen years ago the Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company operated 58 stores in New England. Today they have over 1,000 stores in the same territory, with a total of 10,000 stores throughout the country.

The amount of business transacted by these stores last year amounted to $362,000,000, against a probable $350,000,000 this year.

PROGRAM OF SPORTS

A full program of sports was held, consisting of races, jumps, baseball games and special feature events for the women guests. At the conclusion of the events, the party left for Nantasket Beach, where they were guests of the management of Paragon Park.

The committee in charge comprised W. E. Crockett, president of South Side; J. E. Walker, general chairman, president of North Side; J. Ryan, secretary of North Side; George Nihill, secretary of South Side; R. S. Fitzpatrick, Oscar Penny, Joseph Snyder, Martin Myers and C. Donovan.

The guest of honor was J. Fred Cullen, president of the Educator Cracker Company, who paid a high tribute to the character of the A. & P. store management.

HUNT FAMILY OF HUB WOMAN KILLED IN MO.

The Boston American has been asked to assist in locating relatives of Mrs. A. J. Lodberg, formerly of Batavia street, Back Bay, who is reported to have been killed with her son Walter at Jonesberg, Mo. A telegram to this effect was received by the manager of the Huntington avenue branch of the Massachusetts Trust Company, from C. M. Thurman, an undertaker of Jonesberg. No details of the accident were given.

Woman Drives Car Right Through Holdup Band

Webster, Aug. 14.—Confronted by three masked men who attempted to hold her up as she was driving to her camp at Webster Lake, Mrs. Asa Hartlett of Webster put on speed, scattered the highwaymen and escaped.

The attempt at a holdup was made in the thickly wooded Gore district. The men were armed. As she stepped on the gas one of them was knocked down and the others had to jump into the ditch.

Nothing Cheaper in World Than Women, Said Kid McCoy

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 14—Two days before the shooting of Mrs. Theresa Mora, "Kid" McCoy, nine times married, discussing his various affairs with women, told a friend here:

"There is nothing cheaper in the world than women. Feed them, dine them, but I have had lots of experience and I think today that I am 'nuts' with all of it."

FOUR ARRESTED ON NANTASKET STEAMER

Police Are Called Aboard at Pemberton and Quartet Is Taken Off

Rough house tactics aboard the last Nantasket-to-Boston boat were brought to a close when Hull Police boarded the Steamer Old Colony and arrested four Boston young men on the charge of disturbing the peace.

Officials of the Nantasket line, apparently disturbed over the actions of a crowd of young men, summoned a squad of police from Hull.

Uniformed officers quietly boarded the ship at Pemberton. A crowd of young men ranging anywhere from eighteen to twenty-five years of age were rushing about the after deck.

At sight of the police the group separated. Four, however, were caught hurling camp stools into the harbor. Others were throwing their straw hats overboard.

BOY POSTER WINNER JOINS I PLAY SAFE CLUB

Wilbur G. Dickinson, fourteen years old, of Lynn, who won first prize in the National Safety Council's poster contest for boys and girls, was the first school boy to join the I PLAY SAFE CLUB.

Wilbur has not only joined the Boston American's pledge to do his bit to reduce motor vehicle casualties, but has given countrywide expression to the [illegible] movement through [illegible] ball as an art. "Watch the ball, boy," was the title of Wilbur's cartoon, a silhouette of a traffic policeman with uplifted hand standing beside a traffic monitor labled "Safety First."

The Lynn boy's idea was such a simple and direct symbolization of accident prevention that his drawing was selected from an avalanche of specimens submitted by school boys and girls all over the country. The $25 check by the National Safety Council looked like a million dollars to Wilbur.

He had won $5 as first prize in daddies display safety emblems on a poster contest for school children their cars, and drive safe, if said daddies are too busy to sign up as I PLAY SAFE members. And members of Rotary Clubs are invited to join as individuals or as organizations.

WOMAN BROKER "BROKE" IN WALL ST.

Once Poor Immigrant Girl, Rose to Dignity of Big Suite of Offices

By CORINNE RICH

New York, Aug. 14 (Universal)—Wall Street's only woman broker is broke.

A receiver's notice was tacked on the entrance door of the five-room office suite of C. Goldhurst & Co., Inc., which is headed by Miss Clara Goldhurst.

The sudden finale of her first independent venture in business became known. Miss Goldhurst went into retirement for the present at least.

"Clara's still under thirty, and she has the grit to come back. This is only a beginning of her career," friends said, as they besieged the office.

After four years in business as the only woman on Wall Street as the head of a brokerage firm selling stocks and bonds to small investors on the installment plan, her assets were given as $5,432 and liabilities as $12,176 in the involuntary bankruptcy.

"Never mind," added a friend, "what she has done once she can certainly do again. Just have a look at her career."

Clara Goldhurst came over to this country fifteen years ago from Russia.

In a necktie factory she got a job that paid $4.50 a week.

Four years ago she started in for herself. Started in a very small way in a very small office. Novelty investors were her specialty. They began coming to her in droves and she had to move to bigger quarters. Five rooms and fifteen subordinates formed her office when the sign went on the door today.

REFUSE CRIPPLE LICENSE TO MARRY

Unsuccessful Newsboy Applicant Also Deaf, Dumb and Blind

Harold Kelve Kaplan, 21-year-old South End newsboy, propose to Miss Minnie Yuda, 42-year-old waitress, both of No. 13 Mott street? How did Kelve know when he was accepted by the lady of his choice? Those questions are interesting because, for Kelve is deaf, dumb, blind and crippled.

City Registrar McGlenen, unable to figure out the strange romance, refused a marriage license to the couple.

Kelve makes his living by selling newspapers, chewing gum and shoe laces on the Washington street railroad bridge, near Chatlie street. Friends must carry him to and from work. The friends had to carry him into City Hall on his unsuccessful quest for the marriage license.

The boy's mother accompanied him to City Hall and insisted on the issuance of the license, as did Miss Yuda, but the registrar remained obdurate. Miss Maher, of the Community Health Association branch on Emerald street, opposed issuance.

Announcements of the wedding, which had already been mailed, were hastily recalled by the Kaplan family.

Giant Bogus Dollar Bill In Shape of Rug Is Seized

New York, Aug. 14.—The largest counterfeit United States dollar in the world was seized here. Federal agents explained it was illegal to reproduce currency in any manner.

The dollar is six feet by four.

NOW WOMEN SMOKE ON HUB STREETS

ENID THOMAS

Winthrop girl calmly puffing a cigarette as she strolls along the shopping section of Tremont street. There is no law to prevent women smoking on the streets of Boston.

GIRL SMOKERS ARE ALLOWED ON STREETS

Another one of man's prerogatives has been usurped by the so-called gentler sex.

Along with short hair, knickers and the boyish silhouette, women have taken to smoking on public thoroughfares.

Heretofore women have confined their smoking to homes, cafes and automobiles, out of some slight deference to the conservative.

Recently Superintendent of Police Michael H. Crowley announced there was no law forbidding a woman from smoking on the streets of Boston.

In consequence we have Enid Thomas of Winthrop starting Tremont street by puffing a cigarette as she strolled along.

FREDERICK SPARGO, COURT OFFICER, DIES

Frederick Spargo, an officer of the Suffolk County court house, died today at his home, 65 Dracut street, Dorchester. Mr. Spargo underwent a serious operation a week ago today. One of his six daughters, from Deaconness Hospital, was in attendance at the operation.

Mr. Spargo also leaves a widow and three brothers. He was born in Milton in 1867, and was appointed to the Boston police department in 1904. Mr. Spargo was attached to division 11, Dorchester, until May 17, 1909, when he was appointed a court officer.

ANTI-VICE PASTOR'S CHURCH IS BOMBED

Niagara Falls, N. Y., Aug. 14.—The First Baptist Church, on Main street, was bombed today. The explosion wrecked the interior of the structure and windows in business places a block away were broken. Rev. A. B. Mercer, pastor of the church, is president of the Niagara Falls Council of Churches and has been active in recent crusades against places of vice.

A second bombing occurred a short time later, when a small grocery store was damaged. The police have not determined whether there is any connection between the two incidents.

MAN SLAIN BY AXE; ROOMMATE IS HELD

Torrington, Ct., Aug. 14.—Ralph Delco was murdered with an axe as he lay asleep in his bed at his room ing place on Wall street during the night. Lorenzo Sanna, who slept in the same bed with him, is being held as a material witness. Sanna denies the killing, but said he knew Delco had been slain when he left the room this morning.

FLOODS SWEEP MANY VILLAGES IN ITALY

Milan, Aug. 14.—Torrential rains have fallen near Lake Maggiore and Varese. Stresa, Varese and a number of villages have been flooded due to the overflowing of many streams. Serious damage has been done and telegraphic and telephonic communication has been interrupted.

BEAUTY WILL DIVORCE MAN SHE SAVED

New York, Aug. 14 (Universal)—Beautiful Evelyn Farino, former screen actress and Follies belle, who has been the centre of several sensational episodes in her brief career, swept again before public notice with a suit for divorce based on amazing circumstances.

Upon her arrival from Chattanooga, Evelyn told of her suit begun in Chattanooga a week ago against Raymond O. Bennett.

It is the outcome of her changed sentiments toward young Bennett following his trial for the murder of Herbert M. Carruthers of Tampa, Florida, in May of 1923.

Throughout this trial she stuck by the twenty-four-year-old athlete, who steadfastly denied firing the fatal shot into Carruthers' head after the latter had endeavored to "horn in" on a party at which Evelyn was hostess.

Following a hilarious evening, Carruther's body was discovered in the automobile roadway outside Tampa, and Bennett was arrested charged with murder.

Evelyn hurried to the police chief's office with $50,000 worth of jewels and banknotes to secure his release.

She found friends and witnesses for his defense. She hardly slept during the six weeks before Bennett was acquitted. She endured what she called the persecutions of the family of Carruthers, who was a wealthy Florida lumberman.

But the ordeal killed Evelyn's faith in Bennett. She had been married three years when the catastrophe occurred. Following it she says Bennett entered upon a career of drinking and abuse that drove her to sue for divorce in Tennessee, a State where cruelty and drunkenness are sufficient grounds for divorce.

With the same Southern drawl that used to delight Broadway and the same wistfulness in the big black eyes, she said:

"Some girls—like me—get themselves into trouble trying to be loyal. We don't want to get hard-boiled so we get the worst of it in the end. I loved Ray. But since that awful shooting when I stuck so true to him—well, I think he's a bit irresponsible since. I can't stand his abuse any longer. Ah'm through!"

She went on to say nervously that she had just received information that her husband, through his attorney, M. N. Whittaker, of Chattanooga, was planning bringing a suit himself.

JEWELER SHOT DEAD BY MAN IN AUTO

New York, Aug. 14.—Andrea Puleo, a jeweler, was killed today in Brooklyn by an unknown assailant who fired both charges of a shotgun from an automobile as the merchant was standing on the street talking to a friend. The automobile then sped away. The police believe the murder was the outcome of a feud.

GALAXY OF STARS FOR 6 EVENTS

List of 75 Contestants Best in New England and U. S. Half-Mile Champions

Seventy-five registered girl athletes have already entered for the six swimming and diving events of the Boston American's sixteenth annual water carnival in Charles River Basin, Back Bay, next Saturday afternoon.

This list contains all the best girl and women swimmers in New England for both short and long distances, as well as the two speediest half-milers in the world.

The latter are Miss Gertrude Ederle, seventeen year-old wonder girl of New York who holds three swimming records that any person of her sex, and Miss Ethel McGary of New York, who in a close second, Miss Ederle smashed five records in one day.

Both these girls belong to the Women's Swimming Association of New York, which has more than a thousand members. Miss Ederle will defend her title as champion of the United States for the half-mile, which she won last August at Detroit.

Ethel McGary.

SEEKING THE TITLE.

Miss McGary, as well as seven Canoe N. E. swimmers, will try to wrest the title from her. The New England swimmers expected to give the New York girls a battle for honors are Miss Olive Holland of Weston, member of Boston Swimming Club, Miss Delna Carlstrom, the clever Worcester High School mermaid and Miss Anna Baum of Bridgeport, Ct.

Miss Mollie McEttrick of Brookline, considered by many experts to be the best short distance swimmer in New England, will participate in the dashes. One of her competitors will be her sister, Helen.

Other clever mermaids who are expected to be among the prize winners are Ione Muir of Boston, Mabel Mangller, Boston, Miss Ellen Lundgren, Roxbury, Miss Katherine Mearis, South Boston, Miss Wilma Nelson, Cambridge, Esther Spargo, Quincy, and Miss Hena McDonald of Brookville, all of whom are members of Boston Swimming Club.

TELL HOW BANK WAS WRECKED

Gilpatric Got Putnam Funds on Note Endorsed by "Straw Men"

Putnam, Conn., Aug. 14. (A. P.)—The manner in which G. Harold Gilpatric, State treasurer, was able to perform the principal part of the $262,000 extractions from the First National Bank of Putnam, which have wrecked the institution of which he is cashier, became known today for the first time.

As it stands now, the bank's losses run in two parts, those represented by Liberty bonds and other negotiable securities, and funds obtained on notes with straw endorsers.

One of the officials of the institution says the directors of the bank never knew of the institution's responsibility for these securities and likewise were in ignorance of the notes that have cropped up.

Persons with Liberty bonds brought them to the bank and almost invariably asked for Mr. Gilpatric himself to take them over, so great was their confidence in him personally. Although record of such funds was kept by the bank, with entries made by the official receiving the securities, examination of the books has shown that Mr. Gilpatric in most instances, failed to pass the receipt that he gave in behalf of the bank, and diverted the securities to his own credit.

The directors could know nothing of this practice, it was pointed out, and similarly the national bank examiners on their periodical visits had no means of checking the existence of the bank's responsibility for such securities which did not appear anywhere on the books.

"It is a lesson to directors of country banks, men like ourselves knowing little of the business, who should take nothing for granted," said a bank official. "We could not have prevented the theft, but we did try to prevent the closing of the bank. But when we found that it required $200,000 or $300,000 to do so, we had to give it up."

State's Attorney Charles E. Searles of Windham County said today:

"The Federal authorities have enough evidence available to secure the indictment of the natural life of Mr. Gilpatric."

Mr. Searles is counsel for the bank as well as State's attorney.

Dr. S. B. Overlook was said to have placed $5,000 worth of the funds in Gilpatric's hands for safekeeping. Dr. Overlook performed an operation on Mr. Gilpatric shortly after he had been removed to the hospital.

SARDINE CANNERS MOVE TO END STRIKE

Eastport, Me., Aug. 14. (U.N.S.)—A meeting of sardine canners was to be held today in an effort to settle the strike of sardine boatmen. There was no change in the situation today. A large fleet of boats of the Seacoast Canning Company and the Booth Fisheries are tied up here.

HUB GIRL WINS WAGER BY KISSING G. A. R. VET

EDITH HORTON

When the G. A. R. parade passed through Temple place, Miss Horton's employer, in a store on that thoroughfare, bet her $5 that she would not dare to kiss one of the aged Civil War veterans proudly marching through Boston's str eets. She took the dare, rushed into the street and implanted a large kiss on the mouth of one of them. Then she collected the bet. She is shown with her prize.

FRENCH CLASH WITH GERMANS OVER RUHR

London, Aug. 14 (A.P.) — The deadlock between the French and the Germans on the question of the time limit for the military evacuation of the Ruhr is jeopardizing the success of the International Conference, it was indicated today after a hurried meeting of the French, Belgian and German premiers at Downing street early today had failed to produce tangible results.

On his return to his hotel after the conference M. Herriot said: "The allies are with us and we are in complete control of the situation."

The Germans returned to their hotel where direct cables to Berlin carried the news of the unfavorable turn in the conference to the members of the German Cabinet at the other end of the wire.

After a brief German Cabinet meeting, negotiated by the cables which were exchanged directly with Wilhelmstrasse, Chancellor Marx and Foreign Minister Stresemann returned to Downing street at 12:29 o'clock.

Meanwhile Prime Minister MacDonald of Great Britain saw M. Herriot and urged upon him that he accept a compromise on the time limit for the evacuation of the Ruhr.

Later Chancellor Marx said he could not accept an his own authority the French proposal that the military evacuation of the Ruhr begin one year after the date of the signing of the protocol in London. It was announced the Germans would give their answer Sunday.

HOLY LAND PILGRIM'S DESERTED DORY FOUND

Manila, Aug. 14 (A.P.)—It is believed that Ira Sparks of Peru, Ind., who sailed from Honolulu in January for the Holy Land, in a 23-foot dory, perished off the coast of Formosa. A deserted boat named "Dauntless, Honolulu," has been found stranded on Gaiyuan Island on the eastern coast of Zambanga. He was last seen at Tandag, Surigao Province, Philippine Islands, on March 23.

ALLEGED G. A. R. VETERAN HELD AS BEGGAR

Although he wears a Grand Army uniform and lacks a leg, James H. Barsante was arrested today charged with peddling lead pencils in the street.

Franklin P. Dally of the Traders of the Poor made the complaint which resulted in the arrest.

Barsante says he fought in the Civil and Indian Wars and was with Custer for a time.

Dally doubts that he was in the Union Army during the great rebellion and insists he lost his leg while employed by a shipping corporation.

It is the contention of the overseers that selling pencils is only a subterfuge, and that the old man is in reality begging in the street.

GIVEN $8 A WEEK.

Barsante, who is over 70, supports an aunt who is ninety-six.

Some time ago the Overseers of the Poor became aware of his destitute condition, and gave him $8 a week on condition that he keep off the streets.

The veteran and his aunt live at No. 19 Warrenton street, South End.

With the direction from the Overseers of the Poor the police evidently found no alternative but to carry out the order. The letter was forwarded to City Hall Avenue station and an officer was dispatched to Tremont street and the veteran was duly placed under arrest and taken to police station.

FURNISHES SECURITY.

"I just have to have more money if we are to live," the veteran told the police.

"I only sell pencils an there an hour a day and this week, when my old war buddies are here I am doing a better business. I don't blame the police for this. I know where the complaint comes from.

"Try and keep two people on $8 a week and see where you come out."

Security of $27 was demanded of the veteran which he furnished after considerable difficulty.

According to the police the veteran is a harmless old fellow, who has always been inoffensive.

IMPURE CANDY SEIZED IN SOUTH END

More than a ton of candy, mixed with human and animal hair and dirt, and which was destined to be sold to children, was seized by inspectors of the Boston health department in a South End basement.

The mixture was in the possession of a man who gave his name as James Badoalan, of No. 76 Middlesex street.

Badoalan said he bought the so-called candy from a person whose name he did not know. He intended to melt it, he said, and use it for grab-bag sales to children.

The health authorities said they had never seen a worse mixture than the stuff which this man intended to pass out to the little ones of the South End.

The inspectors denatured and then destroyed the candy. The health department will apply to the courts for summonses for persons concerned in the transaction.

Forest Service officials said that a reserve force of experienced forest fire fighters would be concentrated in California within two weeks.

Osborne added to his two final victories a run in the 10-pound mile, putting every one of the Americans which he and Dan Kinsey of the University of Illinois took care of ahead of their competitors.

PLAYING FIELD AT WORCESTER VERY POOR

Worcester, Aug. 14—The outfield surface of Boulevard Park, home of the Worcester Eastern League team, is in such poor shape because of constant gouges throughout the playing field, that Manager Jack Coffey of the local team has announced that he will not allow his players to use the park in the league, as far as the playing field is concerned.

The decision was reached when Coffey took his players to Boulevard Park than they are any of the other diamonds in the league, as the outfield on ground balls are common and the Worcester field.

HELEN WILLS SCORES AT FOREST HILLS

Forest Hills, N. Y., Aug. 14.—Miss Helen Wills of Berkeley, Cal., the defending champion, won three matches on the turf courts of the West Side Tennis Club in the national women's turf court championships today. She took her second third round singles matches and, paired with Mrs. George W. Wightman, her first round doubles match.

Miss Wills' victories, coupled with those of Miss Molla Bjurstedt Mallory, Miss Marion Z. Jessup of Wilmington, Del., Miss Elizabeth Ryan of Los Angeles and Miss Mary K. Browne also from Miss Angeles, put the latter through to victory without the loss of a game to Mrs. H. P. Falk of Elberon, N. J., in the second round and lost but three games to Mrs. Ceres Baker Sackett of East Orange, N. J., in the third round.

Rivaling the performance of Miss Wills was that of another California miss, Miss Mary Browne, champion of a decade and more ago, who also won two singles matches, her first round victim being Miss Leslie Bancroft, left handed Boston girl.

Miss Browne, paired with Mrs. Wightman, pushed through to victory in the first round of the doubles, defeating Miss Leslie Bancroft and Miss Edith Sigourney of Boston and Miss Marjorie Bannister of New York, 6-3, 6-4. In the second round of the doubles, scoring over Miss Adele Cragin of New York and Miss M. H. Pritchard of New York, 6-4, 6-1.

Seven of the eight seeded players engaged in the first round of singles, Miss Edith Sigourney of Boston being the only seeded player to go down in defeat, Mrs. F. V. Jones of Brookline beating her, 6-3, 8-6, after a thrilling duel. The seeded players who reached the fourth round are Mrs. Molla B. Mallory, Miss Eleanor Goss of New York, Miss Martha Bayard of Short Hills, N. J., Miss Wills, Mrs. Marion Z. Jessup of Wilmington, Del., Miss Ryan of Los Angeles and Miss MacDonald of New York.

All but four games drew keys in the first round of the doubles.

Sixteen doubles teams will meet in the third round of the doubles championship tomorrow. Four teams, Miss Mary MacDonald of New York and Mrs. Edward Raymond of Bartlube N. Y.; Miss Helen Wills of Berkeley, Cal., and Mrs. George W. Wightman of Boston; Mrs. G. E. Sussex of New York and Miss Augusta Bird Bissen of New York, and Miss Edith Sigourney of Boston and Miss Leslie Bancroft of Boston—will play their second round matches, being unable to finish this round today.

Ideal playing conditions prevailed the rain of yesterday, which caused the postponement of the second round until this afternoon, helping to freshen the playing surface of the courts.

The singles matches tomorrow feature Miss Wills vs. Mrs. Jessup, Miss Browne vs. Miss MacDonald, Miss Goss vs. Miss Bayard, and Mrs. Mallory vs. Mrs. Roosser.

FAVORITES FORGE TO FRONT AT NEWPORT

Casino, Newport, R. I., Aug. 14.—Six lawn tennis stars fought their way into the fourth round, the round before the semi-finals, of the cup singles on the turf of the Casino here today. Of this group a trio of Californians, William M. Johnston, Harvey Snodgrass and Clarence J. Griffin, all of San Francisco, held places of vantage. The other brackets were filled by Norman E. Brooks, the Australian nestor; Dr. George King, New York, and John F. Whitbeck, the latter a young Harvard player.

Whitbeck outrioted and upset Wallace F. Scudder, New York, number 18 of the national ranking list and a seeded contender, 3—6, 6—1, 7—2. The young player won the first set in the intersectionals championship last season, cleverly employed his fast drive to overwhelm Scudder in the final set. Vosbel led 6—3 on games and had the advantage of service. Whitbeck played his finishing shots so ably in the rallies that the ranking star was repulsed in his attack, the latter completing off four straight games for the match.

The performance of Griffin, who defeated N. W. Niles, the Boston veteran, 6—4, 6—4, revealed some of the best deep court strategy of the day. From his side of the net the Californian adroitly forced his openings and then by speed finished the rally for the point. In each of the sets Griffin broke through his opponent's service on the ninth game. Throughout the battle which marked the first tournament victory for Griffin over Niles, the Californian's placements were remarkably true.

Walter Merrill Hall, New York, in the belated matches of the second round, also acquitted for the elimination of one of the seeded players. He defeated Lawrence H. Rose of Brookline, Mass., 6—4, 6—2. From his side of the net Hall operated for placements. His crosscourt drives were perfectly timed and his backhand strokes always affective.

Two rounds were contested in the starting of the doubles, the first event Norman E. Brookes and R. E. Schlesinger, the Australians, outplayed George Peabody Gardner and H. C. Gild, Boston, in a thrilling three-set engagement, 6—4, 8—10, 6—2.

It was the crafty coaching of Brookes that stood to the core in the rallies. He had the ball sailing aloft for high lobs that kept the opposing pair on the race between the net and base line. Schlesinger's forehanders found the net early in the contest. He steadied later to bring off sizzling passes.

Johnson and Griffin, former national champions, dropped a set to Jerome Lang and G. B. Emerson, the Columbia University pair, before they steadied to win, 7—5, 6—0, 6—2.

FORMER PENN STAR TO COACH GEORGETOWN

Washington, Aug. 14.—A complete new staff of coaches will direct the football destinies of Georgetown University next Fall.

Lou Little, former Penn star, will be head coach and will have three assistants. Lur Wray, former Penn backfield star; Pos Miller, who captained Penn two years ago, and Mike Palm, former Penn State quarterback, will assist Little. Jack Mahoney of Boston coached the eleven last Fall.

Little hopes that with the new staff in charge the record of the team last year, which was none too imposing, may be forgotten and a new start may be made in building up a combination that will carry the Blue and Gray to the success it enjoyed when under the guidance of the Indian coach, Albert Exendine. With the passing of Exendine came the passing also of several of Georgetown's most famous stars.

The squad will assemble at Silver wood Forest, Md., soon and start work for the coming campaign. The season will open on Sept. 27, with the annual game against George Washington University. On the following Saturday Georgetown will meet Kings College in another preliminary game, but after that the schedule becomes quite formidable. The strong Quantico Marine team, which has defeated the Blue and Gray eleven for the past two seasons, will be met again on Oct. 18, and Bucknell will be Georgetown's opponent a week later.

BUSY SEASON AHEAD FOR CONCORD GOLFERS

A busy autumn season is planned at the links of the Concord Country Club. The season will open Labor Day, Sept. 1, and will conclude on Saturday, Oct. 25, with a turkey tournament. A handicap tournament will start with the qualifying round Sept. 13, to be followed for three weeks by match play. The annual open golf tournament, under the auspices of the Massachusetts Golf Association, will be held at the Concord Club this Fall.

TY COBB LOSES SERVICES OF BLUE

Philadelphia, Aug. 14.—Lew Blue, the Athletics' outfielder, injured his ankle in the sixth inning of the first game between the Tygers and the Athletics here today, crumpled up on the field. The injury happened when Blue turned suddenly between third base and home plate. Blue will be out of the game ten days.

BOBBIE AND HIS PA

By Wm. F. Kirk

PA, I used to my dad last nite, Pa.

I see, why is it that Zeebrys is stripped & Ellefants aint stripped at all? I see.

Do not ask silly questions, Bobbie, said Pa.

I fail to see wats the question is silly, said Ma. You must not discourage our little son in his search after Nollege, said Ma.

When all the animules were on the Noahs Ark, Bobbie, said Pa, the Zeebry was not striped. He looked just like a white horse at that time, Bobbie, said Pa, but the Zeebry which was on the Ark was Fleabowers Bobbie said Pa. It was not fitting for such folks to sail great big boats & a publishud & a crook, said Pa, & the kid took after him.

Well, said Pa, said Noah catched the Zeebry after spending a hole of day with fleabowers in the Elefant, said Pa, so he said to the Zeebry, I will mark you with the Seel of the Thief, said Noah, & he put stripes on the Zeebry to mak him look like a prisoner, said Pa, & the Zeebrys has been striped ever since, said Pa. ge

I am glad you toald me that, Pa, I said. I never herd that bee fore.

Now I set Ma. Yure father has a lot of Nollege in his littel hed, insert he, Bobbie.

Littel hoff, said Pa. Littel hed, did you say?

Did the Tiger steel anything when he was on the Ark? I said to Pa.

No, said Pa, he dident.

Then why is the Tiger striped too, like the Zeebry? I said.

Oh, said Pa, them stripes was put on the Tiger for sum thing which he had stole long hoolund he went on the Ark, said Pa. I think he stealed sum water melons, Bobbie, said Pa.

How silly, said Ma. Tigers dosnt eat water melons.

They used to in them days, said Pa. That is how the Tigers got them stripes, Pa said, from eeting striped water melons.

How did the Leopard git spotted? I said. Stealing sumthing?

Yes, Bobbie, said Pa, the Leopard was stealing a watch which he found in a Detektives wife, said Pa, & the Detektiv spotted him.

Well, said Ma, I guess that will be about enuff Bedtime storys for one evening, said Ma. I want to go to the movies, Ma said. So we all went & seen a queen on the screen.

Needs Baby's Crib

Helping Hand Editor:

I hope you won't think me bold for asking you to help me get a crib for my baby. He is a year old and is fully out of his crib. I am married. Thought someone might have one not in use. My husband works, but only gets $20 a week. I stay with my sister. She has three rooms and shares them with us, but cannot afford to help us any other way, as she isn't very well off herself. I have three children, 2 and 4 and a baby. Anything I could get for them, I would be grateful for. MRS. G. D. L.

Editor Helping Hand:

Seeing the splendid work you are doing, I would like to help, too. I have a few things that would fit a boy from 11 to 17, woman's shoes, 5½ and 6; a few things for a boy around 10 years, pair of tan lowcut shoes, 7½ or 8 (man's), and a man's coat, size 40. HOW TO KEEP WELL

By Dr. F. X. Mahoney

Boston Health Commissioner

Dr. Mahoney

ARE you proud of that vermilion-colored sunburn?

Even though it's as sore as any other burn, you are pleased when it shows up pleasantly beside the pale face and arms of a fellow straw-hanger suggestive of long days on the beach or in the woods.

But too much sunburn is — too much.

The sun seemed warm and friendly when you flung yourself wet on the hot sands after your swim; but the sun packs a real stroke behind its benign exterior, just the same.

A severe sunburn is as painful and disturbing to your health as any other kind of burn. The cells in the skin are first dried up and the epidermis becomes harsh and peels off. If you still remain in the sun after the first warning flush of sunburn, the under layers of tender skin between the epidermis are affected and a sore, such as you might incur with fire or scalding water, results.

Disturbed as it is, the skin cannot function normally in this condition. It cannot throw off the excessive amount of water that it should. In order to adjust your body heat to the temperature, and to rid the body of its normal waste.

Undue strain, consequently, is placed on your kidneys. They exert themselves in an attempt to take care of the duties of the skin, together with their own. The result is far from beneficial, especially if the kidneys are not altogether normal.

"Sunburn chills" are a distressing attendant of a severe sunburn and are frequently accompanied by nausea and loss of appetite. With a small child, the symptoms are likely to be aggravated since the child's skin is very tender and will so much more affected by the sun.

Baking soda and water, non-irritating salves, oils or cold cream have a soothing effect upon a burned skin. Avoid soap and water after exposure to the sun. They have a drying effect and will irritate a burned skin.

Unless you have a skin that readily adjusts itself to the sun and develops a heavy tan, a little care is necessary. An umbrella or a good dusting of talcum over cold cream will prevent a bad burn.

Be especially careful with the baby when you take him to the beach. You can lay up suffering for him and annoyance for yourself if the hot sun gets at his tender skin.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED

Please tell me where I could go for thorough physical examination. Am 44 years of age.

MRS. M. N. K., Brookline.

I would recommend the Boston Dispensary, Tremont St., Boston, the Massachusetts General Hospital, Fruit St. They could have a thorough physical examination at either of these institutions, and feel perfectly secure in carrying out their advice.

Please send me a list of maternity hospitals.

MRS. D. M., Charlestown.

It would be better for you to consult your family physician as to the best hospital for you. If you have no family physician, I would recommend the Boston Lying-In Hospital, Longwood Ave., or the Boston City Hospital, Maternity Department.

Should a person eat when very tired? I notice that if I do, I get indigestion. MRS. K., Woonsocket.

Unless the stomach is in very bad shape it will be perfectly all right to eat within half an hour or an hour.

The Boston American will pay $1 for "Best Joke" published. Address "Best Joke," Boston American.

A young wife recently went into a grocer's shop and addressed the grocer thus:

"I bought three or four hams here a month or so ago and they were fine. Have you any more of them?"

"Yes, ma'am," replied the grocer. "There are ten of those hams hanging up there now."

"Well, if you're sure they're off the same pig I'll take three of them," replied the young wife, meekly.

HOW "BIG MEN" ARE DRAWN INTO KLAN

only do not understand it, and most of them will be disposed to deny that it exists.

It does, and it is being practised in Massachusetts this very day.

Theoretically all "white men" are equal in the organization. In practise, however, the Klan is conducted as an empire, not a republic.

It is the will of the Imperial Wizard and his gang that controls. Against them the storm of popular disapproval may beat in vain.

For Big Men Only

Men accorded the rare privilege of private initiation are what I like to describe as "super-Nordics."

They are the men who understand the subtleties of racial and religious hatred, but are too intelligent to have such prejudices themselves.

Private initiation, frankly, is not initiation at all.

In most instances it is granted to big politicians, mayors and governors and candidates for such high offices; and to big financiers.

Let us say a king kleagle is having trouble getting a State or realm organized. In that State there is a potent politician, a comedy Protestant. Let us assume, again, that he is a candidate for governor.

Naturally he will not want to go through the rigmarole that makes an ordinary klansman.

Neither will he want to make public appearances and affront Catholics and Jews by flaunting Ku Kluxism in their faces.

But he will be willing to accept Klan support and let it be known in the privacy of the klavern that he is in the Invisible Empire.

Desperate Game

To him will be given the privilege of "private initiation." In other words, he will be given the pass words and the check words and the rest of it. Possibly he will be given high office in the Klan.

In one State in the West a candidate for governor was privately initiated just before election day. A big financier of my acquaintance was similarly honored. One of the biggest Klan officials in New England never went through a public initiation, he admitted to me.

"See the big men that are joining," the poor simpletons in the Klan will say. "Let us vote for Klan candidate; he's a big Klansman."

Chances are the "big Klansman" joined a week or two before election day by being privately accepted because of his prominence.

He is in the order for his own ends, which are quite frankly selfish. At the same time he is escaping the odium which attaches to ordinary Klan membership.

Verily, the "super-Nords" are playing a desperate game with the passions and prejudices of the multitude.

Big Change Coming

"Native-born!"

That expression is a thorn in the sides of the money-mad organizers and kleagles and king kleagles.

They are ready to admit that the canny organizers of the Klan overlooked a bet when they made American birth a condition of membership.

When you're organizing hatreds there is nothing like being thorough, and the expression "native-born" has thousands of foreign-born Protestants who would like to join.

"Why not get their money, too?" the clean-cut young business men who are selling memberships are asking.

I predict that before the big New England mass meeting planned for October is held foreign-born Protestants will be admitted to the Klan.

In Haverhill a large group already has asked for the privilege of membership. In Brockton there is a like element. In Maine there are thousands of English-speaking Protestants, foreign-born, who want to get in.

You see, the native-born American has no monopoly on racial prejudice.

It is the tendency of all races to misunderstand and consequently despise other races.

Your foreign-born American is just as bitter against the Catholic and the Jew as the native-born American.

Only, in the country he came from, they have not started organizing hates and misunderstandings. It took Americans to do that. Organizing genius is not confined to the business field.

(Copyright, 1924, by the Boston American)

In my next article, which will be my last, I shall become a little bit more personal. I plan to describe the conditions that disgusted me with this organization.

As in previous articles, I shall be matter-of-fact and stick to the truth. I have not endeavored to become indignant in writing these articles. I believe understanding, rather than abuse, is what is needed to meet the Klan menace.

Tomorrow's article will be slightly longer than the others and deal with odds and ends of Klan development neglected heretofore.

Reading about that may be comfort to some who think they have serious troubles.

THE MAYOR of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., puts earnest thought into short words, "The next generation will go crazy between frankfurters and jazz." Like the earnest official that he is, Dan Hart, Mayor, adds deeds to words. He says he is going to pass an ordinance that he has prepared forbidding jazz music anywhere in his town. Otto H. Kahn, who runs the big Metropolitan Opera, says jazz has its place as an element to express artistic inspiration. The same is true of the baboon's howling. It had to precede Demosthenes' oration on the crown.

AMERICA, wasting what would feed another nation of equal population, views with amazement close economies in Germany. There gasoline costs about $2 a gallon, incredible as it may seem, and employes advertise for short, slim chauffeurs, as light as jockeys, to run their light cars. The lighter the load, the less gasoline used. We learn economy and other things from necessity.

BONUS BUREAU AIDS VETERANS' RELATIVES

Scores of relatives of dead veterans are seeking aid of the American Adjutant-Bonus Bureau.

And the corps of experts, working under the direction of Maurice Palais, has helped them make out their bonus blanks. So if you're the next of kin of a deceased veteran don't hesitate at availing yourself of this free service.

Bonus questions will be answered each day in the columns of the American. Some answers follow:

MRS. D. F., SOUTH BOSTON.

Q.—My brother is a disabled veteran of the World War. Am I entitled to the adjusted compensation? If not, on account of what?

A.—Your brother was discharged from the service under honorable condition he is entitled to make application for the bonus. An official blank is being mailed to you today. Your brother served in the service in Ireland. An instruction sheet for filling out the blank is being mailed to you. In answering the questions refer to the number of your application which must be indicated on the blank.

M. F. C., MILFORD.

Q.—I was drafted in the Army in May, 1918, and served seven months. I was discharged in December, 1918, with six months' service credited to me. Am I entitled to the bonus, and will the approximate amount of it be sent to me at once?

A.—From your length of service you will receive a certificate entitling you to $60 and $1 for each month of service in excess of one year. This sum will be turned into a 20-year endowment policy, but you will be given a face value of about $125. You will not receive the money until you are 20 years old, but you may borrow on the policy after the expiration of the 20 years, the loan being secured by it.

A. L. S., QUINCY.

Q.—I served in the Navy, July 16, 1917, and was honorably discharged June 30, 1919. Am I entitled to the bonus? If not, on account of what?

A.—Entitlement to bonus depends upon length of service. Your service was naval service. (2) What will be the amount of the bonus? (3) When will it be paid?

A.—There is no discrimination between land and naval service as far as the credit allowance is concerned. Service credit is computed from enlistment to discharge, as overseas service, regardless of whether service is performed in home or foreign waters. (2) You will undoubtedly be entitled to the maximum amount of $625 allowed under the bonus law. The credit allowed for each month of service is $1.25 per month for a face value of about $125. (3) Payment will be made in accordance with the order in which applications are received at the Bonus Division, Treasury Department Office, State Capitol. Inquire at your local office for information about the Bonus in that State.

R. F., GREENVILLE JUNCTION, ME.

Q.—I enlisted in the Army and was discharged August 28, 1919, giving me 2 years of service, overseas. How much will my bonus amount to?

A.—From your length of service you will receive a 20-year paid-up insurance policy with an approximate face value of about $1,000.

P. B. C., Roxbury.

Q.—I was in the army from June 25, 1918, to July 12, 1919, being discharged at Camp Dix as physically unfit on account of defective teeth. Am I entitled to the benefits of the bonus?

A.—Veterans, in order to receive the benefits of the bonus law, must have had at least 60 days of active service. Under the circumstances you are not entitled to receive anything.

FINANCE

—By B. C. Forbes—

Few of us realize how machinery has cut down the cost of living, or, rather, how it has multiplied the necessaries and comforts and luxuries of life for all classes. One example: the amount of labor required to produce one acre of corn in 1830 was 38 hours, in 1911 it was 18 hours, while now it is only 7 hours.

Yesterday's column told of the steps being taken to revolutionize farming by means of electricity and of conferences held between leaders of the electrical industry, farmers' associations, agricultural engineers and Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, Secretary of the Interior Work and Secretary of Commerce Hoover.

What has been the result?

A co-operative movement, headed by what is known as the Committee on the Relation of Electricity to Agriculture, with headquarters in the Chicago offices of the American Farm Bureau Federation, was organized. J. W. Lerdahl, secretary of that organization, was made chairman. The committee is composed of representatives of the American Farm Bureau Federation, National Farm Grange, National Electric Light Association, Power Farming Association, American Society of Agricultural Engineers and the U. S. Department of Agriculture, Commerce and Interior.

The work of this committee is to direct in a national way the organization and scope of activities of State committees to carry on experimental rural electrification work in various States. Each State committee is composed of representatives of the power, farming organizations, farm editors, agricultural college engineers, farmers and representatives of the electrical industry.

* * *

* * *

Consider, for example, what is being carried on in Minnesota. The experimental project will be pioneer; for perfect results under the climate just outside of Red Wing, where a five-mile line has been built to serve fifteen farmers.

Electricity was first sent through the line Christmas Eve, 1923, and the noon luncheon marked by a celebration around the first electrically-lighted Christmas tree ever seen in that section. Subsequently the homes on these farms were equipped with every conceivable appliance, and the farm buildings and farm yards and fields are being used as natural laboratories for practical experimentation with all manner of machinery and appliances for doing mechanically, either automatically or semi-automatically, those chores and tasks ordinarily done by animal or human labor. Woodsawing and splitting, water pumping, silage cutting, silo filling, grain grinding, milking, separating, churning, ice cutting, refrigerating and similar tasks are being done by the use of electric motors.

* * *

But it is in other fields that the real experimental work must be carried on, since it is estimated that from 30 to 90 per cent. of all labor on the farm is drawbar, or traction, labor; such as the hauling of wagons, ploughing, harrowing, planting, spreading of fertilizer, etc. These experiments are being carried on by some of the committees and at State Agricultural schools and colleges.

* * *

Early in the experimental work it became apparent that much of the farm machinery which is designed for operation by human power, animal power, or team or combustion engine power, is not, as it stands, adapted to electric drive. In other instances it was found that small power motors, or motors operating geared to machinery could do automatically—that is, without the constant attention and direction of the farmer or a farm hand—a given job which previously had required a large horsepower tractor or internal combustion engine and the constant attention of from one to three men. It was found that speeds of motors and operating speeds of machinery must be changed.

* * *

Experiments are being made with an electric plough at the State Agricultural College at Ames, Iowa, under the direction of Professor H. Dawdson. An experimental automatic plough has been built. This operates with an electric motor, receiving energy through a cable on a spring spool which alternately pays out the cable and takes up the slack, thus drawing it up and down across the field. The experimental plough has only a six-inch bottom, and is equipped with a one-horsepower motor, but it is believed that a two horsepower motor will operate a full size plough.

* * *

Giving the farmer comparatively inexpensive machinery, automatic or semi-automatic, to perform his labor and to shorten his work hours and lessen the work of the women folk should result in greater productiveness, lower farm, with higher living standards for the entire family. Also, the father and his sons and perhaps the wives and daughters, should be able to find remunerative employment on rainy days during the Winter months in the manufacturing of machinery parts, novelties, wood products and anything else which can be made on hand lathes or with automatic or semi-automatic machinery.

An inspiring prospect, is it not?

1925 IS SEEN AS YEAR OF BIG BOOM

By FRANK. H. MELOON,
Financial Editor.

Some of the leaders in the world of business and finance are already forecasting 1925 as a year in which there will be a big boom. The election of President Coolidge and the getting into actual operation of the Dawes plan are two features on which they base their belief. Personalities have been submerged in the present stock market, because the fundamentals behind the market are too powerful to be resisted.

One of the best-informed of Wall Street's prominent citizens made this assertion, and when asked to elaborate said:

"I'd hate to oppose this market. Consider what happened to the speculators who attempted to bring about the collapse of the French franc. Issuance of a mere statement by the House on the Corner and, instantly, tremendous losses to these speculators.

"The people behind the present move will not stand for interference. They are convinced that the market should and will prevail. I know that the successful flotation of a German loan will depend upon the condition of the market. Wall Street's most powerful interests are working for the success of that loan and they are convinced that the present market is advantageous to its flotation. Their idea is to maintain the market in strong position until the loan is oversubscribed.

"The bankers are determined that insofar as the security markets are concerned everything will be set right."

The flotation of the German loan will be generally accepted as confirmation of the optimism of bankers over the foreign situation.

While railroad earning records are a dominant factor marketwise in such stocks, effect of rumors of probable consolidations is becoming of increasing importance. What is going on behind the scenes in the way of consolidations cannot always be determined, and it is becoming increasingly difficult, therefore, to determine the correct market value of certain non-dividend paying common stocks.

On past and present earnings the prices of some common stocks listed below are not warranted, but probable or possible consolidations, if effected, may more than warrant present market values.

On the other hand unless such consolidations occur or some arrangement is agreed on which assures larger net return than can be expected on past and present earning records, it appears that a closer attainment will result marketwise in some instances.

The following table gives the 10-year (1914-1923) average annual net available for the common, net or deficit per share for that period, last year's earnings a share, present dividend rate, earnings for this year, and market price at the close Tuesday:

Points in Wednesday's Market

Most active issue in New York—Pan. Am. Petroleum B, 43,400 shares; in Boston—Am. Telephone, 1,150 shares.

Total sales, Jan. 1, 1924, to date —New York, 145,418,500 shares; in Boston, 3,321,501 shares.

STOCKS HIGHER IN NEW YORK BUYING

New York Stock Exchange prices quickened considerably before noon, despite selling in Davison Chemical, United Drug, National Lead and Eastman Kodak, which dropped 1 to 2 points.

Southern Pacific lost ground because of the failure of the directors to declare the dividend.

International Shoe soared 5 points and gains of 2½ to 4 ¾ points were recorded by Baldwin, Prices preferred Rutland preferred, National Lead, Atlantic Refining and General Electric. Call money opened at 2 per cent.

The Boston market was featured by renewed speculative interest in Rutland, Rutland preferred which rose up from 40 to 43, this following Wednesday's 2½ point rise. The stock went to 44 on the big board. New Haven witnessed a spirit of its own, later hardening to 27¼, and utilities and copper shares generally were fractionally improved.

Boston Elevated common easily moved up from 76 to 79 on small-set investment demand. The smashing from last week's lows of 72 ¾, which also established the bottom level for three years, now measures 6 ¼ points.

The 7½ point rise in Rutland Railroad preferred in two days 'o 44¾, comparable with a low for the year of 22, has attracted much attention. Dividend prospects of the preferred stock were regarded as somewhat minimal a few weeks ago by the Interstate Commerce Commission order requiring the installation of an automatic train control system.

However, the Commission subsequently recalled this order as affecting so large number of smaller roads, of which Rutland was one. This means that at least until further orders of the Commission Rutland is relieved of the necessity of making a substantial expenditure for train control.

There is outstanding $8,955,100 Rutland preferred, New York Central and New Haven each own $2,352,600. The stock has not paid a dividend since 1921 and the last dividends on the issue now amount to over 28⅝ per cent, the rate being 7 per cent. cumulative.

Railroad Issues Are Most Sought in Bond Market

Narrow price fluctuations in New York bond dealings failed to impart a definite trend to the market, although considerable interest was manifested in railroad issues.

Definite announcement that Frisco directors will consider recapitalization plans next week sent the road's income 6s to a new 1924 top price.

Bonds of the Northwestern carriers, including St. Paul and Chicago & Northwestern, were in demand as it seems the heavy grain traffic would increase earnings.

Foreign obligations marked time, in view of the deadlock of the Inter-Allied Conference over the time limit of evacuation of the Ruhr.

Liberties to sold down to 93, the offering price of a new $3,065,000 issue just placed on the market. A $5,000,000 offering of Rock Island 5 per cent. notes was readily subscribed.

NAT. BISCUIT'S RISE LIVELY

The advance in National Biscuit common has been more sensational than that of almost any stock traded in one the New York Stock Exchange.

The closing price of 70¾ Wednesday equalled 4864 for the old stock.

Up to January 3, 1922, the high-est reached by the old stock was 161.

The appreciation of Biscuit common in a little over 2½ years amounts to nearly a share, or more than $95,000,000.

There are about 2,048,000 shares of National Biscuit common outstanding, and after the split-up it sold on the Curb as low as 33. The appreciation from that level is 64 points.

No news has accompanied the advance. The stock pays $3 annually, and earnings in 1923 and 1924 were at the rate of more than $5.50 a share annually. The company will spend $2,500,000 or more for construction this year, so that the surplus available for dividends would hardly seem adequate for a $3 common dividend.

Appreciation in the common stock alone exceeds the market value of the preferred, recapitalized, preferred and common, before the split-up in 1922.

QUOTATIONS ADVANCE IN COTTON FUTURES

New York cotton futures were higher. October sold at 27.56, up .33; December at 27.80, up .32; January 28.30, up .35 and March at 27.05, up .22.

NEW RIVER CO. MERGER IS DISCUSSED

Merger of some of the largest coal companies in the Pocahontas and Smokeless fields is under discussion. Those mentioned are the Pocahontas Fuel Co., operating ten mines in the Pocahontas field, the Houston in the Kenova field, the White interests and the New River Co., headed by Robert H. Gross.

Meetings have been held in New York by those interested and Howard N. Eavenson, former chief engineer, has been employed to appraise all the smokeless properties being considered. This survey is now in progress and obviously the price per share to be considered until it has been completed.

A director of the New River Co. stated that a consolidation of his company with others in the Pocahontas and New River fields has been under discussion for some time. Nothing tangible has resulted thus far, however, beyond the fact that if conditions and terms will satisfactory the New River Co. would be interested.

The New River Co. is at present operating its fourteen mines, but it is reduced personnel. Production is running about 65 per cent. capacity and while the output for the month of this year the company ran into red ink figures, the profits made during the first quarter of 1924 promise of a return to break even for the first half year.

Wall St. Gossip

CONSOLIDATION OF Congoleum Co. of New York and Nairn Congoleum Co. of New Jersey has been consummated.

PROSPEROUS YEAR FOR TOBACCOS LOOKED FOR

Indications of prosperous year for tobacco manufacturing companies are reflected in good report for the United Cigar Stores and Schulte Retail Stores for first half of 1924. Both showed substantial gains in sales over 1923. Since the prominent tobacco manufacturers make public only annual earning statements, semi-annual reports of the retail tobacco chains afford investors in tobaccos a fair index of the trend of the industry. United Cigar's earnings for the half-year were 16 per cent. higher than last year, while Schulte Retail Stores gained 17 per cent.

COMMERCIAL PAPER AT NEW LOW RATE

Two lots of commercial paper, aggregating about $250,000 have just been purchased by Eliot Wadsworth at 2¾ per cent., which is believed to be the first large sale of paper at that rate so low a rate. Three per cent. previously had been considered a low price, of the high grade paper now being disposed of at that rate.

How Time and Expense Figure in Business Training
The time necessary to complete a course regulates the cost. Burdett College saves expense for students by conserving their time.
In the College Grade Courses the time is definite—two years —but nearly equal in credit hours to a university course, which takes four years. In the Shorter Courses the time is governed by ability, industry and previous training of the student.
Burdett Students' aim is concerted action
—methods permit individual advancement in several courses—regular attendance is urged and frequent reports are made to the home.
It is good business policy for the College to get students through and into the field as quickly as possible. This saves money. But graduation is made the immediate goal of every student. Experienced teachers. Used graduates are most efficient and in demand—employers demand from Burdett Situation Bureau the graduates who have completed their courses in average time.
COLLEGE GRADE COURSES: Secretarial and Administration — Higher Salesmanship and Marketing — Executive Accounting—Secretarial—Normal.
SHORTER COURSES: General Secretarial and Shorthand Combined — Civil Service — Dictating Machine—Office Clerical — Finishing Courses.
ENTRANCE: Secretarial and Shorter Business Courses, Sept. 7 or any Monday. Courses in Administration—Accountancy—Salesmanship and Marketing—Begin Sept. 15.

BOSTON AMERICAN

Largest Evening Circulation in New England—August 14, 1924

Charity begins at home — read the "Helping Hand" at home tonight and you can begin to help tomorrow.

What Ku Klux Klan Spirit Would Mean to America

The Boston American will conclude tomorrow publication of a series of articles on the Ku Klux Klan.

Comprising the confessions of a former Kleagle, they were written to instruct and not to startle or amaze.

If they show forth anything, they show that hatred is one of the easiest things in the world to sell and that expert salesmen are not wanting in our America.

Carried to its logical conclusion, the Ku Klux Klan spirit would mean the nullification of the Constitution. It would mean the end of the dreams of the Fathers. It would mean race against race; faith against faith; man against man. It would mean the ruin of this land. Even if the Klan never executed an act of summary vengeance, its influence for evil would be incalculable. To the bigoted of every race and class it is a challenge, not to reform their own houses, but to retaliate in kind.

High sounding are the catch words of this organization. But in the secrecy of its klaverns only prejudice is distilled.

One of the evils of the Klan is that eventually it is bound to lead to organized retaliation in the business and political fields. Hate is a two-edged sword. It cuts both ways. In the last analysis, the articles show that the Ku Klux Klan cannot justify itself, and that tolerance and understanding never were more needed than now.

For this poisoned condition what is needed, mostly, is a restoration of balance; a rebirth of the spirit of fair play; a renaissance of that great American institution, the Sense of Humor.

We are all Americans, and we are here to stay. For our common comfort, we need to "be to each others' faults a little blind."

You're Wrong, Mr. Trotzky

We Shouldn't Even Know How

Trotzky learned little about America when he was here. He lived in a restricted crowd, not well informed. Consequently, he tells the world now that the United States is trying to "Balkanize Europe." We would reduce Europe to a collection of feeble, fighting, quarreling, exhausted nationalities.

Then we should step in and rule the world as imperial masters.

It's a dream. If Trotzky knew a little more, he would know that United States statesmanship is the most innocent in the world. It doesn't form grand schemes, and wouldn't know how to carry them out if it did.

The funniest part of Trotzky's talk is his demand that "the international proletariat" unite to suppress American imperialism.

There isn't any "international proletariat." There are groups of working people of different nationalities, all of whom hate each other, and thus make it easy to rule them. Mr. Trotzky may study the proletariat in India, where the Mohammedans and the Hindus murder each other vigorously. The English calmly rule, while the proletariat fights.

If the proletariat could do all that Trotzky expects, its members would not be proletarians. Look up the meaning of that word.

Trotzky was born a proletarian, but got out of it.

Three Little Items

Cash, Crossroads, Lodge-Bryan

The Federal Reserve Bank of New York cuts its charge for "rediscounts and advances" to 3 per cent. That means very "easy money." It means also comfortable profit for financial institutions that lend at 5 per cent, quite easily—at 4 per cent. to their most highly favored customers—and make a full 1 or 2 per cent. on the transaction.

The French send us a good idea. A metal plate is put across the roads at dangerous automobile crossings. An automobile passing over the plate releases a danger signal at the crossroad, warning motors from all directions that a car is coming.

The signal, lighted at night, is especially needed in this country where high hedges, trees, etc., seem especially located to create dangerous blind corners.

Senator Henry Cabot Lodge warns the country against the "danger of Governor Bryan becoming President," in case the election should be thrown into the House and thence into the Senate.

Other Americans will not share the intense alarm of the sick Senator from this State. They know that Governor Bryan is an honest, capable Western American. Many of them would rather have one of Governor Bryan than two of Henry Cabot Lodge in the White House.

Select one that other men like and gladly help. You select another myobist.

Find one respected by his neighbors. That one is a myobist.

"Myobist" is a new word. Its father is Dr. F. H. Vizetelly, managing editor of the New Standard Dictionary. It is a word manufactured with four letters for its foundation as follows: M. Y. O. B. And those four letters stand for the following excellent advice: "Mind Your Own Business."

He who minds his own business is a MYOBIST.

There would be less ill-feeling in the world, less interference by the crowd with the rights of the individual, less effort by the individual to tell the crowd what it ought to do, if MYOBISTS were more plentiful in this world.

Join them, be ONE of them, start a little MYOBIST SOCIETY in your neighborhood. It will pay everybody that joins.

A WIFE'S MEDITATIONS

By HELEN ROWLAND

NEXT to convincing a mule or a second cousin by marriage that convincing a man when he doesn't WANT to be convinced is the hardest feat on earth.

* * *

You may convince him that you love him—but once the idea has taken root you can never convince him that you love him, no matter what you may have said to cure you.

* * *

You may convince him that you are good and sweet, and even angelic—but never that you are reasonable, frank and logical.

* * *

You may convince him that he isn't an Adonis—but never that there isn't something "taking with women" about him.

* * *

You may convince him that you understand him—but you can never convince him that you see THROUGH HIM.

* * *

You may convince him that he's going the pace that kills—but never that some woman isn't "driving him" to it.

* * *

You may convince him that you adore him madly—but never that you like him just a little or admire him mildly.

* * *

You may convince him that your prophecies were right—but you can never convince him that he was mistaken in his judgment.

* * *

You may convince him that a girl has never been made love to—but never that she couldn't be made love to.

* * *

You may convince him that no man's intuition is unerring—but never that he can't succeed in fooling her.

* * *

You may convince him that he looks fascinating in evening clothes and attractive in a high collar—but never that he looks unattractive in a bathing suit.

* * *

You may convince him that a brunette is sincere—but never that a blonde isn't frivolous or that a red-haired woman isn't dangerous.

* * *

You may convince him that you know that all his love-making is "apple sauce"—but never that you don't enjoy listening to it.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

IT takes so many little deeds to fill a busy day, so many wants, so many needs are scattered on the way. Folks go, a hurly-burly crew, in haste from morn to night in search of work and pleasures new while hours take rapid flight. They find a world that's new and strange with every fleeting day, as scenes and actors ever change and old things pass away. As swiftly goes the south wind's sigh, so runs time's caravan, then why not show in passing by such kindness as we can? Such kindness as will soothe regret in any aching breast, will make the hungry heart forget, will give the weary rest; the humblest man with lavish hands has this for all in need, has wealth to rival gold and lands, plays Midas' role, indeed. Not things that worldly minds would prize as having worth and weight, not lofty place in etheric space, not regal pomp and state are what the kindly can bestow on those who know distress, but just the passing they can show their love and tenderness. The chance is with men every hour to do what good they can, to make life's desert places flower for some unhappy man. A little hope, a little cheer to fill the busy days; ah! what a potent spell is here to charm dark fears away! What power in a word, a smile, to lift the fainting soul, to shorten many a weary mile that barred them from their goal! In passing, leave those as you go like candles one might light to send their tiny, golden glow across the sombre night.

In Hard Circumstances

Helping Hand Editor:

Pardon me for writing again. I am trying so hard to find work, but nothing doing. It seems as if everybody has forsaken us. I eat very little, so the wife and boy can eat, but tell me what can I do? I am willing to work for groceries, if I can't earn money enough to buy food. My wife gets $12 a week. We pay $5.50 for rent and 95 cents for our life insurance, the rest for food. Please see if you can't get work for me if it's only day work; I will gladly do it. I am sick and tired tramping the streets. I don't know what to do. My wife wants me to mention that she has some handmade lace, etc., which she is willing to sell if anybody wants it. Now please do what you can. C. L.

Bassinette and Carriage

Helping Hand Editor:

I have a bassinette and a baby carriage which are of no further use to me; both are in fairly good condition. If there are any of your readers who desire same, please advise them. MRS. J. A. G.

Thank you. This was indeed a welcome offer. We have asked Mrs. O'B., mother of five small children, to call for the carriage, and Mrs. J. M. to call for the bassinette.

Need School Clothes

Helping Hand Editor:

I am a girl of thirteen and have four brothers, 15, 12, 9 and two months, and four sisters, 14, 10, 6, 3. My father has only been working two days a week for a long time and we find it very hard to get along. We haven't much clothing or shoes to start back to school. Boys' shoes, size 5, 4, 2; girls' size 5½, 3, 11, 8, and I take 2½. My mother takes size 38-40, shoes size 5. If you could please help us, we would be very grateful.

ANNA B.

Gives Baby Carriage

Helping Hand Editor:

I have a baby carriage to give if anyone would call for it. I also have some straw hats for girls 12 to 14, waists, etc. I am going to move next week. I will leave them in the first floor entry.

Mrs. J. S.

Many thanks, Mrs. W. M., whose husband was in the World War and cannot earn much wages on account of not being strong, will greatly appreciate the carriage. We have asked her to call for it, and Mrs. L. J. for the clothing.

Asks for Cast-Off Clothes

Editor Helping Hand:

We are endeavoring to pay up some heavy bills brought on by sickness and so are in need of many things. I have read each night of the great help your department is to unfortunate people without hurting their pride by making things public and I wonder if anyone might have any cast-off garments for boys, aged 10 and 14, and for a man 42 chest and a woman 36-38 bust. Anything would be a help and greatly appreciated at this time. MRS. E. H.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Gas Fumes Annoy.

Editor Boston American:

For many years commuters of the "L" system using Everett Station have been inconvenienced by the offensive, nauseous, sickening odors emitted from the suffocating fumes of a chemical plant nearby. It is about time that something was done to protect the car riders from the poisonous and unhealthy gases. To the tired workman and wornout business girl at the end of a hard day's work, the choking atmosphere is unbearable. I can not understand how the people of Everett who live in the vicinity can stand it. Surely something should be done.

DR. FRANK CRANE ON ANIMALS

By DR. FRANK CRANE

WALT WHITMAN speaks somewhere of loving to be among the animals because they do not bow to each other.

That is, among animals there is no rank, nor class, except that class which is fixed by nature and all of them recognize as part of the organization of things.

The dog wastes no time in regretting that he is not a fish and the fishes do not want to get out of their medium. They are content to be in the water.

There is no nakedness among the animals, no sense of shame. They expose one part of themselves as indifferently as another.

It is only among human beings that we come to clothes and the coverings of the human body.

Consequently humanity is the only kind of animal life that has manufactured a sense of shame.

There is no modesty or shame or any such thing among the animals who frankly are what they are. Animals go about the world and out of the world as naked as when they were born. It is man alone that must be covered up. It is from our sense of concealment that most of our sins arise. Animals have neither sin, nor confession of sin, nor remorse for it.

Only by our ability to sin are we able to rise to a greater height than the animals.

Only because of the responsibility of removing our clothes do we call keeping them on a purity. Animals have no purity because they have no possibility of sin.

They are regulated by their instincts, which is another name for the rules of nature.

It is only when the intelligence has been placed in man, and he endeavors to regulate his own conduct by it, that we have such words as "decency." The animals are automatically decent.

For this reason those who spend their lives among the animals tend to their level. Virtue is a human thing and is cultivated only by contact with our fellows. As virtue, by its very name, means the character of a man, it means the effort to do by our reason what the animals attain by instinct.

The world is gradually ridding itself of all animals except those domesticated by man and the fishes of the sea and of the river.

The time is coming when other force than animal shall be used by mankind in the performance of his labors.

When that time shall come humanity will no longer tolerate the existence of animals in their midst.

Thus the growth of intelligence means the development of virtue and the sense of shame.

Those who look back with longing at the freedom of the animal life are simply those who contend against the law of growth. From this law we cannot escape. It has its bad adjuncts as well as its good ones, but it is inevitable.

Dear Old Boston Weather

By Fitzwilliam West

(From the New York American.)

WE will admit without argument that Boston is conservative and, if you don't believe it, perchance, look at the way they handle the weather up there.

The way they smooth it over and take all the meanness out of it, wins my highest admiration. Other people cuss the weather, but Boston humors it and rubs it gently on the back the right way, just like it was an old house cat.

There is one ultra-conservative old paper up there that never gets excited and never loses its poise, no matter what weather conditions may be.

THUS, on one of the hottest and most disagreeable days of this year, last Thursday, when old General Humidity was doing his stuff regardless, this dear old publication informed its readers of the weather in the following paragraph:

"Somewhat sultry, with temperature over 80 degrees, by midforenoon, it proved to be a day included in neither the best nor the worst of Summer weather. The wind during the forenoon was in the South. The sky, while free of clouds, contained hint of haze. It was much more comfortable weather a year ago today, when there was maximum temperature of 74 degrees with east wind and partially clouded sky. Unsettled conditions, possibly with showers, are predicted for tonight and tomorrow."

That wasn't what the Weather Bureau said about it, by a mile, and not what the people generally in other localities said about it, by a full marathon course.

"SOMEWHAT sultry." Great guns! It was in reality so sultry that one of the statues out on the Public Garden was seen to mop its brow and make faces.

"Unsettled conditions, possibly, with showers, predicted." That paper is taking no chances. It inserts the word "possibly." It does not guarantee bad or good.

For an editor to sit down and rewrite the weather report with conditions as they were that day, in order to be perfectly conservative and on the safe side, is an example of Christian forbearance and Puritan courage that is seldom equalled in the journalistic vineyard.

"THE sky, while free of clouds, contained a hint of haze." My Gawd! You don't say so! That amounts almost to a scandal and we can see the writer cringing with self-reproach when he finds himself obliged to record it.

However, we who Boston likes to have its weather toned down and edited that way. Here in this town, our favorite newspaper gives it to us in the raw and we face it as it is with no qualifications. No New York newspaper comes right out and says: "Damned hot and muggy," but no doubt they would all like to do so and the readers would applaud this sincerity with a unanimous hand.

By the way, I have seen some of those slight hazes that they pull off in Boston, right in the fashionable and refined Back Bay section and I once nearly suffered a broken nose while walking in one of these slight hazes and bumping into a brick wall.

Once-Overs

SEE THAT YOUR CHILDREN HAVE DUTIES COMMENSURATE WITH THEIR STRENGTH AND ABILITY.

Are you going to permit your child to idle away the time till school begins again?

Because your offspring has been at school several months, do you think a long rest with freedom from all cares and duties is advisable?

Your desire is to be a kind and loving parent, but you are foolish.

If your children in their early years do not have special duties to perform in accordance with their strength and ability, they are bound to become too lazy to want to work when they must take up life's duties.

Rather than expend the effort necessary to overcome the shiftless tendency which has become a habit, you assume the responsibilities which your children should have.

Thus the matter is performed in the present, but how about the habit which you are actually helping to hang around the neck of your child.

Change of occupation is the best kind of rest, not absolute lack of something to do.

There is no worse handicap than a lazy spirit.

It will not hurt your children to work, nor you to make them do it.
